LotoCan Profits Double

OTTAWA (CP) — Loto Canada's profits more than doubled in its second year of operation, says the corporation's 1977-1978 annual report released Wednesday.

In the fiscal year ending March 31, four draws netted more than $74 million compared to $28 million in two draws in Loto Canada's first 10 months of operation.

Gross sales were up to $225 million from $107 million the year before.

Under a revenue distribution agreement between the federal government and the provinces, 82.5 per cent of profits go to the 1976 Olympic Games deficit and to the Commonwealth Games next month in Edmonton.

The provinces get 12.5 per cent to use as they see fit. Five per cent is used by the federal government to support amateur sport and physical fitness programs.

However, the lottery dispute between Ottawa and the provinces heated up Tuesday as officials from the Western

Quebec Inmates Take 6 Hostages

Times News Services

STE. ANNE des PLAINES, Que. — Two inmates armed with a pick-axe overpowered a guard Thursday and took six persons hostage, including the director of the prison school at the super-maximum security Archambeault Institute.

The hostage-takers, Serge Roberge and Maurice Paquette, both 24, were demanding a car, two walkie-talkies and safe passage out of the prison, assistant prison director Laval Marchand said.

The convicts, both serving life sentences for murder and armed robbery, want to leave the prison with the two negotiators, prison chaplain Cure Claude Lebel and Louis Lemay, the prison's assistant director for security, Marchand said.

A Quebec police force spokesman said the prisoners overpowered their guard at the doorway of the prison school shortly after 6:30 a.m. PDT.

The spokesman said senior police officers, prison officials and the prison chaplain were negotiating by telephone for the release of the school's director, a guard and four instructors, one of them a woman.

There were no injuries reported, police said, adding that "there is no way they can escape from the grounds. The school is inside the walls surrounding the penitentiary, and there is a 12-foot fence around the walls."

A worker at the federal prison said the incident had not caused any disruption in the daily routine of the 400 other prisoners.

The incident followed last week's escape of four prisoners from Montreal's maximum-security Laval Institute in a blaze of gunfire. The inmates shot their way past the main gate and one guard and another prisoner trying to escape were killed in the crossfire.

Quebec provincial police cornered two of the fugitives at a campsite 25 miles southwest of Montreal, capturing one Wednesday and one today.

Police said no details of how the capture was made would be released until later in the day.

The other two escapers, described as the "most extremely dangerous," were still at large.

Walkout On Wash. Ferries

SEATTLE (AP) — Engineers on two busy Washington state ferry routes remained off the job for a second day today in a dispute with the ferry system over staffing of a demonstration jetfoil.

The walkout continued despite a preliminary restraining order issued Wednesday night by King County Superior Court Judge Gerard Shelland, requiring the Mariner Engineers Beneficial Association to order its members back to work.

Ferry system spokesmen said an effort was made to contact the engineers after the restraining order was issued, but the engineers were either sick, on vacation or unreachable.

The routes affected were the Seattle to Winslow and Seattle to Bremerton runs — two of the busiest commuter runs in the ferry system. The job action meant more delays to and from work for hundreds of commuters who live in Bremerton and on Bainbridge Island.

Management personnel who have engineer licences to operate the jumbo ferry Walla Walla said they would make four round trips a day today between Seattle and Winslow to meet commuter demands. However, there was no service between Seattle and Bremerton.

Dismal Growth Picture Forecast

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The national economy would have to grow at nearly twice its current rate over a five-year period to fully employ the country's labor and capital resources, the Conference Board in Canada said Wednesday.

At the same time another private study, from the Vancouver-based Fraser Institute, says spending by governments now accounts for 41.2 per cent of total economic activity in Canada, a sharp rise from 30.8 per cent in 1961.

The Conference Board, a private economic research organization, states that prospects for the next 18 months are that economic growth will become even more sluggish because consumer demand is weak.

In the first three months of this year, the economy grew at a real annual rate of only 2.8 per cent, after discounting for the effects of price inflation. The national jobless rate in June was 8.6 per cent, highest since the 1930s, and industry is operating at only about 83 per cent of production capacity.

But even though these conditions suggest growth rates of about 5½ per cent annual are possible, demand is weak.

As a result, Charles Barrett, the director of general economic analysis for the Conference Board, says: "The current short-term outlook for the Canadian economy points to continuing sluggish growth between now and the end of 1979, and hence to the possible emergence of even more slack in the economy over the next 18 months."

If this is correct, the study says, then it will take an economic growth rate even higher than 5½ per cent over the coming five years to lower national unemployment to around 5½ per cent.

Business capital investment is exceptionally weak currently, the study notes. With savings high, companies may become more dependent on outside sources of financing than has historically been the case if economic recovery occurs.

This could lead to some financing difficulties and cause problems for liquidity, or availability of capital.

But if recovery occurs, the prospects are for a reduction in the government's spending deficit, possibly approaching a balanced position after five years of sustained growth. In the current financial year that started April 1, the federal government is expected to have a deficit of at least $11½ billion.

Michael Walker, research and editorial director of the Fraser Institute, says in real terms, after discounting for inflation, government spending has risen by 108 per cent since 1961.

The study measures government spending as a percentage of gross national product. On this basis, governments were spending 41.2 per cent of GNP or $3,635 for every man, woman and child.

Following a recent meeting with top business leaders in Ottawa, Finance Minister Jean Chretien said agreement was reached for the government to take a smaller share of the national economy. This would leave a greater role for private industry, Chretien and the businessmen said.

BREAK-INS TIED TO JUVENILES

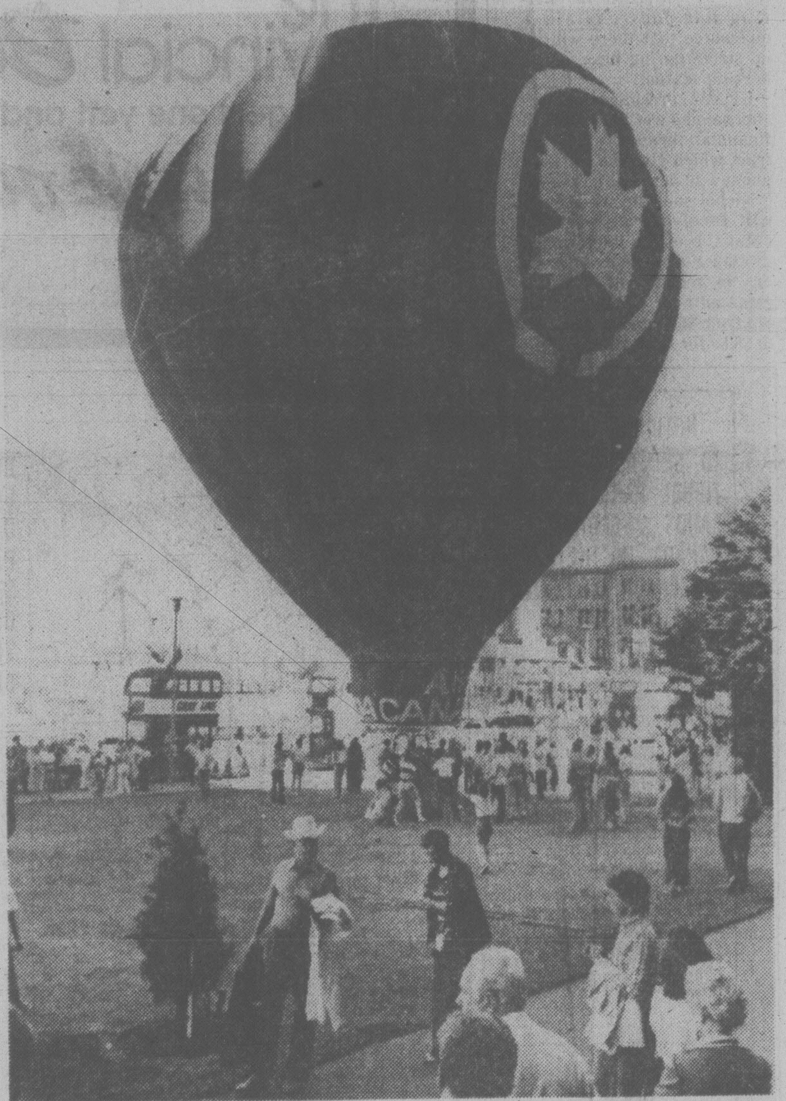
Sidney RCMP have traced a juvenile crime ring responsible for at least 14 break-ins in Sidney and North Saanich.

Three juveniles, aged 14 to 16, have been apprehended and police are seeking four more in connection with the series of thefts from homes, businesses, cars, and the Panorama Leisure Centre over the past month.

One of the boys is to appear in Family Court charged with theft and breaking and entering. He and another boy, yet to be formally charged, are in custody in the Juvenile Detention Home.

The third boy was released to the care of his parents and will appear in court later in the month.

A police spokesman said the stolen goods were hidden in the boys' homes and included stopwatches, tapedecks, radios, cigarettes, candies and film.



GAS BAGS aplenty have strolled on the lawns of The Empress, but Victoria seldom sees one this big. The 70-foot-high Air Canada balloon arrived today as part of the Captain Cook festivities. Although tethered on the lawns, it will take invited guests up aloft for a bird's eye view of tall ships and sundry other sights. The company says if weather conditions are favorable, the balloon may offer rides to the public before the weekend is over. (Bill Halkett photo).

Ferries Slap For 32?

A spokesman for the B.C. Ferry Corp. said Wednesday the Crown corporation is contemplating disciplinary action against workers who walked off the job Monday at Horseshoe Bay terminal in West Vancouver.

Ken Stratford, traffic manager, said in an interview that disciplinary action ranging from reprimands to suspensions could be levied against members of the B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union.

Thirty-two workers aboard the Queen of Coquitlam walked off the job leaving passengers stranded for four hours in some cases.

When the ferry finally left for Nanaimo after a meeting between the Labor Relations Board and the union, traffic at the terminal was backed up more than two kilometres.

Union spokesman Bob Peacock said the walkout was to protest against months of frustration with management over staffing and safety issues, and management's disregard for workers' complaints.

Stratford said one of the issues that led to the walkout centred on the ventilation system below decks.

He said the union complained the area was too hot. The corporation agreed, Stratford said, and installed a temporary system which will be replaced in the fall.

He disagreed with the union's contention that there is an understaffing and safety problem on the ferries.

Staffing meets federal regulations, Stratford said, and is well above requirements in the United States.

E. J. Bentley, another corporation spokesman, said the dispute was minor and involved the corporation's critical appraisal of an employee's work. He refused to elaborate.

The dispute, which was threatening to develop into a full-scale work stoppage, was cooled Tuesday by the Labor Relations Board when the two parties decided to resolve the dispute through grievance procedures without further walkouts.

ANOTHER CHESS DRAW

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (UPI) — Russian defector Viktor Korchnoi Thursday battled Soviet world champion Anatoly Karpov to another draw in the second game of the $550,000 world chess championship.

Karpov, the 27-year-old Russian whiz kid who won the world title by default when American champion Bobby Fischer refused to play him in 1975, offered the draw after 29 moves although he held a slight advantage at the time.

VW Insult Earns Bop In the Eye

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Farris, 29, learned the hard way early Wednesday that people in Volkswagens don't appreciate insults aimed at their vehicles.

The lesson began shortly after Farris rode his bike past a red VW Beetle in the 1500-block Burrard, shouting to the occupants that their vehicle was "a pile of junk." He didn't explain to police why he made the remark.

A husky young man jumped out of the VW, walked over to Farris, punched him in the eye, then got back into the car and drove off.

The only good luck for Farris was that he was just a couple of blocks from St. Paul's Hospital, where it was determined that he had a broken cheekbone as well as a monumental shiner.

Police are looking for the Volkswagen driver.

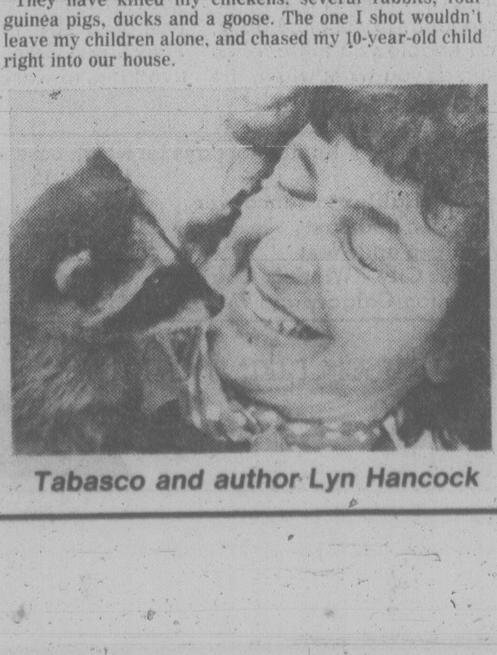
Killer of Raccoon Protests Neighbor 'Persecution'

PORT COQUITLAM (CP) — A city man said Wednesday he is being persecuted for shooting dead a tame raccoon featured in a book by Vancouver author Lyn Hancock.

The 18-month old raccoon, Tabasco, was being coaxed back into the wild when it was shot in this Vancouver-area city.

"I have a grudge against raccoons," said John Jobs. "They have killed my chickens, several rabbits, four guinea pigs, ducks and a goose. The one I shot wouldn't leave my children alone, and chased my 10-year-old child right into our house.



Tabasco and author Lyn Hancock

"How was I to know it was tame? It didn't have a tag around its neck saying: 'I'm tame, please don't shoot me.' In fact, it looked in even worse condition than most wild raccoons. It had an ugly looking patch on one side, and I thought it was diseased."

Jobs continued: "People living nearby are pointing me out as the bad guy. But this is the other side to the story. I love animals just as much as anyone. Now I know this raccoon is tame, I'm really upset. I've apologized a hundred times, but the woman who was looking after it wants to nail me."

Hancock, who has written a book called 'There's a Raccoon in My Parka', asked a friend, Lore Putz, to take care of Tabasco and encourage the raccoon back into the wild.

"Tabasco came to my house towards the end of June," said Putz. "We live close to some woods, and we were trying to encourage her back into her natural habitat.

"She only spent a night with us, and then took off. We discovered she was in a nearby creek, and then she vanished again. The next thing we knew, she was dead.

"Lyn Hancock is just off on a trip to the Arctic, but she was devastated when she heard the news. Tabasco was the sweetest little thing."

Putz said she found out Tabasco had been shot from someone in the neighborhood, then confronted Jobs, who told her the pet raccoon was buried in his back yard.

Tabasco, who weighed about 17 lbs., was one of seven pet raccoons given to Hancock. One, Rocky, was the central character of her book.

She used Tabasco to publicize the book across Canada and now is writing another book about Tabasco.

No Retreat Says Laurin Of Changes

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Cultural Affairs Minister Camille Laurin said today that new draft regulations to permit head offices to continue using English were "not a retreat" from the basic principles of the French Language Charter.

"It's an attempt to adjust the principle of the law . . . to the particular situation of head offices in Quebec," he told a news conference.

Both Laurin and Economic Development Minister Bernard Landry, repeating earlier statements, stressed no head office could interpret the regulations as forcing it to leave the province.

Most business leaders said they would have to study the new regulations in detail before reacting.

But Reg Groome, head of the mainly English-speaking Montreal Board of Trade, reacted angrily, saying it is "naive" and "ludicrous" for the government to expect it can control the language in which people do business.

Groome said the regulations amount to making companies ask for permission to use English, and would ultimately lead to the departure of more head offices from Montreal.

Landry said the regulations represented a delicate balance between "the cultural context of enterprise" and factors of efficiency and profitability.

The government, he added, has concluded "that it's good for the Quebec economy to welcome numerous and important head offices" from outside the province.

The regulations allow head offices of companies with more than 50 per cent of their gross income from outside Quebec to conclude special, more flexible, agreements with the province's French Language Office on increasing the use of French as the language of work.

Under certain conditions other head offices and research groups doing less than 50 per cent of their business outside Quebec can also enter into similar special agreements.

Landry said he was planning to release a study showing head office activity in Montreal is actually increasing, but that he was "so sur

U.S. Mail Talks Bogged

Times News Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a mail strike perhaps hours away, the U.S. government's top mediator says both the U.S. Postal Service and postal unions are still far apart on major issues in negotiations on a new contract.

The major sticking point is a no-layoff clause the unions won in 1970 and say must be included in the new contract.

Postal Service negotiators say the 25-word phrase must be eliminated if they are to trim their work force and hold down future postal increases.

A spokesman for the Canadian post office in Toronto says Canada's post offices will continue to accept mail addressed to the United States despite the strike threat.

Bourassa Kidnap Plan Bared at RCMP Hearing

OTTAWA (CP) — Terrorists planned to kidnap former Quebec premier Robert Bourassa in 1971 to mark the anniversary of the 1970 October crisis in that province, the royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing was told today.

Chief Supt. Donald Cobb, head of the RCMP's security group in Quebec at the time, told the commission the Mounties learned from another police force of the conspiracy to kidnap the former premier. He did not identify the force.

Cobb also produced a document he prepared listing some of the other activities planned by the terrorists.

They included:

—Plans to kidnap four or five businessmen to finance terrorist activities;

—Plans for an armed robbery of a food market. The conspirators were revealed as the authors of a 1971 robbery of a Montreal restaurant, said the document;

—A raid on the three Quebec Civil Defence depots. Communication, camping and other equipment were stolen and the theft was assessed by the defence department as a suggestion of setting up a rural guerrilla group;

—The armed robbery of a caisse populaire in Mascouche, Que.;

—A conspiracy to extort $200,000 to finance terrorist Jacques Lanctot in Cuba by placing a bomb at Dorval airport.

Cobb produced the document in reply to Mr. Justice David McDonald, head of the royal commission. The commissioner had asked for some examples of the intelligence picked up by the RCMP in their Quebec work which is partly under question by the commission.

Cobb said in an interview later the Bourassa plot involved people in rural Quebec who had "a long record of that type of activities." Police believed this plot to be serious. What happened?

"He wasn't kidnapped," Cobb replied.

Cobb said that what concerned the Security Service were the robberies of the Civil Defence depots, the Mascouche robbery, and the decision of FLQ thinker Pierre Vallieres to go underground.

The Mounties envisioned a band of rural guerrillas well equipped with civil defence tents and so on, financed by armed robberies, and led by Vallieres.

These things set the scene for the RCMP's "source recruiting program." Cobb said he aimed at "the most dangerous network" and wrecked it through approaches by RCMP to three of its associates.

Fishing Force Returns

B.C. salmon fishermen are out catching fish today, trying to make up for what they lost as a result of a three-day strike.

"They're all back to work," Jerry Spitz, president of the Fisheries Association of B.C., said today.

The 600 tendermen and 4,300 shoreworkers, members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, walked off the job at noon Sunday.

Both groups ratified tentative agreements Wednesday.

The fishing industry is said to have lost $5 million a day during the dispute but Spitz said that figure is highly suspect.

He said the eventual loss could be narrowed by a number of factors including a one-day extension that has been granted on the opening of the salmon run at Rivers Inlet, south of Bella Coola.

"What we have had is a hiccough, not a major disaster," Spitz said.

He said the companies, which are represented by the association, are pleased with the eventual agreement.

The stumbling block at the end was that the tendermen, who work on the packers, wanted separate agreements for handling salmon and herring.

The final agreement contains no provision for herring but does contain a quarantee that there will be no strike during next year's herring season.

UFAWU president John Nichol said he was pleased with financial terms of the contract which give the workers about a 10 per cent increase.

Nichol said the tendermen will receive a $9-a-day increase, boosting their wages to $112 a day. Shoreworkers are to receive an extra 70 cents an hour on rates ranging from $6.72 an hour at base to $8.89 for tradesmen.

CARGO SHIPS CRASH

KODIAK, Alaska (AP) — Two container cargo ships collided head-on in the North Pacific about 1,000 kilometres south of this island port early Wednesday, the United States Coast Guard reported.

The Coast Guard Cutter Jarvis said both vessels suffered extensive damage in the pre-dawn crash, but no crew members were injured.

A Coast Guard spokesman identified the vessels as the 160-metre Star-K out of Piraeus, Greece, and the 168-metre Taiwan Phoenix out of Singapore. Neither the destination of the vessels nor their cargoes were known, the Coast Guard said.

Each ship has a crew of about 30.

The Star-K lost an 18-metre-long section in its keel in the crash, flooding its first three holds. The Taiwan Phoenix suffered a long gash below the water line, flooding its forward hold.

The Western Lottery Foundation, which includes representatives of the four Western provinces, is upset at the federal government's plans to introduce a computerized $1-a-chance lottery game.

In Vancouver, Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy said Wednesday that the four western provinces have gone about as far as they can go in their fight with the federal government over who should play the lottery game.

The western provinces have no intention of abandoning the Provincial and Western Express lotteries but will stick to their plan to boycott Loto Canada by asking all distributors to quit handling the tickets, McCarthy said.

Ottawa has offered to give the provinces 50 per cent of the net profit of the new computerized lottery, scheduled to begin Nov. 1, 1979, but McCarthy said "we're not buying the line that a half a loaf is better than a whole loaf."

She said the B.C. government makes $10 million on the lottery tickets which is used for charitable, social and medical projects.

Laurin said there will be a minimum 60-day delay before the regulations come into force. During this period, companies can make "comments and suggestions" and the government will conmsider whether to make further changes.

Raymond Gosselin, head of the French Language Office, said the regulations would allow many head offices to continue using English as the main language of work.

He estimated that about 350 head offices, about one-quarter of those in Quebec, earn more than 50 per cent of their gross revenue outside the province.

They are eligible to start talks with the office immediately, while the others will have to file an application to gain the privilege of negotiating. A key test will be whether imposition of French as a working language will damage their business.

Research and development facilities have been classified as head offices for the purposes of the bill.

To obtain special agreements, firms must spell out what arrangements they intend to make to use French in signs and posters inside the head office, to increase the number of French-speaking staff, to use French terminology and to adopt hiring and promotion policies suited to the use of French.

The regulations did not appear to differ substantially from Bill 22, the language law passed by the previous Liberal government, which also promoted the use of French but allowed special deals with many companies.

Ghislain Dufour, executive director of Conseil du Patronat du Quebec, the province's largest employers' group, said the regulations did not tell him anything new.

Dufour said Article 44 of Bill 101 already provided for special regulations for head offices.

EMPRESS FIGURINES STOLEN

Two Royal Doulton figurines valued at nearly $5,000 were stolen from a display case in the Empres Hotel overnight, Victoria police said today.

One of the figurines was of a group of snowshoe hares. It stood 13 inches high and was valued at $2,600.

The other was a 12¼-inch high grouping of Roseate terns valued at $2,350.

The figurines were in a case opposite Tiffany's on the lower level of the hotel.

Transit Talks Progress

Members of the Greater Vancouver Regional District's transit committee met Wednesday in Victoria with Premier Bill Bennett and Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis to discuss financing of transit in the GVRD.

Mayor Don MacDonald of White Rock, the committee chairman, said following the meeting that the provincial government has "an appreciation of the plight of municipalities to have any further costs go on property taxes."

So, he said, financing of transit, at least in the early stages, will have to come from "other sources such as gasoline taxes and surcharges on hydro."

MacDonald said the government did not make any committments but indicated a "willingness to discuss all the problems, and to find equitable answers."

Carter Drug Expert On Pill Row Leave

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Peter Bourne, hailed by President Carter as the "world's foremost expert" on drugs when sworn in as his health adviser, is on leave of absence with pay today amid a police probe into a prescription he gave a White House staffer.

Bourne, who acknowledges using a pseudonym for his patient's real name, could face up to five years in jail if authorities decide to prosecute him and if there is a conviction.

Insisting he did nothing "legally or morally wrong," Bourne took a leave Wednesday night "because of my ... concern that these implications not interfere with the effective operations of the White House."

The president's health and drug abuse adviser wrote a prescription for methaqualone — a potent sedative that falls under strict federal controls — for his chief aide, Ellen Metsky.

Ms. Metsky said she asked that her identity be kept private, because of the nature of her work, and that Bourne complied by listing her as "Sarah Brown."

When Toby Long of Washington, D.C., a friend, last week tried to have the prescription filled as a favor, a druggist in the northern Virginia county of Prince William became suspicious when she could not produce proper identification.

Police arrested Ms. Long, charging her with trying to fill an illegal prescription, and eventually questioned Bourne. Federal laws require the accurate name of a patient buying such drugs.

"I have consulted legal counsel and believe that what I have done was neither legally nor morally wrong," Bourne said in a statement issued by White House Press Secretary Jody Powell.

Powell said the leave would be with pay — about $51,000 a year.

The leave was "Dr. Bourne's own decision," he added. "The president was informed after he had made the decision and of course he agreed to that position."

"I wrote a real prescription to and for use by a real person with a real medical problem," Bourne said in his defence. "I took what I believed to be legitimate precautions to protect the confidentiality of the individual involved."

Hardly Peanuts!

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hard times have come to the peanut business in Plains, Ga., and as a result, hard times are being felt in the White House.

The CBS Evening News Wednesday said President Carter's peanut warehouse, now held in blind trust, lost about $450,000 in 1977 — a debt that now is eating into Carter's personal assets at a rate of about $145,000 a year.

African Leaders Hit East, West

Washington Post

KHARTOUM — Nigeria warned the Soviet Union and Cuba Wednesday that "they should not overstay their welcome" to become a "new Imperial power" on the African continent.

In a speech before the annual summit of the Orgnization of African Unity, Nigerian head-of-state Lt. Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo warned the Soviet Union that Africa was "not about to throw off one colonial yoke for another."

The Nigerian leader was equally critical of the recent Western military intervention in Zaire saying, "Paratroop drops in the 20th century are not more acceptable to us than the gunboats of the last century were to our ancestors."

The Nigerian leader's speech was carefully balanced in its two-day attack on both Western and Eastern involvement in African affairs.

In a reference to the French-initiated and American-supported inter-African military force now stationed in Zaire's southern Shaba Province, Gen. Obasanjo said: "We totally reject as an instrument of neocolonialism any collective security scheme for Africa fashioned and teleguided from outside Africa: and serving the interests of any superpower.

"It is an insult to the dignity and intellect of the African man," he added.

He appealed to African leaders faced with internal dissension to resolve their difficulties without appealing to outside powers to bolster them in mutual defense pacts "based on colonial relations."

Obasanjo's speech was repeatedly applauded and at the end Nigerian President Julius Nyerere, who is known to share similar views, walked over to congratulate him.

Summit observers have been watching to see whether a kind of "third nonaligned force" will emerge here between those African countries heavily dependent on Western military assistance, like Zaire, Chad and Mauritania, and those just as reliant on Soviet and Cuban aid, like Angola and Ethiopia.

As the most populous and militarily the strongest black African state, Nigeria would be in an excellent position to lead such a force. It has no foreign troops of any kind on its soil and is widely regarded as "progressive" in its foreign policy while being "moderate" in its domestic political and political system.

Nigeria has good relations with both the Soviet and Cuban countries like Angola and Ethiopia and with most of the Western-backed moderate West African states.

There are more than 45,000 Cuban troops and advisers now present in 13 African countries and about 8,500 French advisers in seven others.

It is already clear that the issue of foreign military involvement in Africa is dominating the summit and "a major preoccupation of most African leaders today." Thirty chiefs of state and four heads of government have shown up here, the largest number ever assembled for the annual event since the oranization was founded 15 years ago in Addis Ababa.

Indicatively, one of the African organization's 49 members has not shown up here, the Comoro Islands, where a recent white mercenary-led coup has led to the immediate isolation of is new leader, Abdallah Mohammed.

Last week, African foreign ministers asked the Comoro delegation to leave their meeting as a sign of general disapproval over the way Mohammed came to power. Bob Denard, a mercenary who formerly fought in Zaire in the early 1960's, is now serving as defence and security minister on the island.

Mozambique's leader, Samora Machel, delivered a stinging attack on just such continuing Western military involvement in African countries, wearning that those western nations supporting Rhodesia and South Africa and allowing the recruitment of mercenaries "cannot be our allies."

At the same time, he praised the Soviet Union and Cuba for their assistance to the liberation movements. He also chastised the West for failing to provide Mozambique with military aid against Rhodesian army raids.

SMITH

Whites Tar Smith At Meet

SALISBURY (AP) — An all-white audience booed and heckled Prime Minister Ian Smith on Wednesday night when he said he agreed to bring blacks into the government because it was the best deal that could be expected after six years of guerrillla war.

"Rubbish!," some members of the audience shouted. "How many more have to die?", others yelled.

In an interview earlier the prime minister urged the United States to lift economic sanctions against Rhodesia as a first step toward ending the guerrilla war.

"We are fighting for our lives, for our very existence," Smith told the restive audience of about 300 in an affluent suburb. He said it is incredible for some Rhodesians to believe the country can live in isolation from the rest of the world.

That remark also drew catcalls and comments from the audience, and Smith appeared rankled when someone reminded him he once said "never in a thousand years" would blacks rule Rhodesia.

"It's all very well to shout," Smith said, "but what is the alternative?"

Smith unilaterally declared Rhodesia independent from Britain in 1965 to head off black rule.

German Trade Up To Firms

FAABORG, Denmark (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt said Wednesday that increased trade and investment between the two countries depends as much on the decisions of individual companies as on the actions of their governments.

Trudeau told a news conference after sailing here with Schmidt from Kiel, that although talks between the two had been going well, closer economic ties are a question for private enterprise, not only governments.

Schmidt said that "every corporation takes its own decisions and that West Germany, like Canada, has only a limited scope of measures it can take to influence industry."

Wednesday, Schmidt and Trudeau sailed with Eric Warburg, chairman of the board of the important Warburg-Brekman Bank, on his bank's 52-metre cutter to this city of 17,000 on the large Danish island of Fyn in the Baltic Sea.

About 2,000 people turned out for the arrival in this normally sedate fishing and farming centre including a handful of protestors against the Newfoundland seal hunt who carried signs saying Hurray for Schmidt - Down with Trudeau.

Grim Prison For Dissident

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet authorities have transferred dissident Anatoly Shcharansky to the grim 18th-century Vladimir Prison that has been condemned by human rights activists for frequent beatings and poor conditions.

Shcharansky, 30, a computer scientist and human rights activist, was sentenced to 13 years imprisonment Friday at the end of his weeklong trial on charges he spied for the CIA.

The court specified the first three years should be spent in a close-confinement prison. However, it was not clear whether Shcharansky was going to Vladimir to begin his sentence, or whether he would only stay there briefly on his way to another jail.

He already has been jailed 16 months and that will be deducted from his sentence. After prison, he faces 10 years in a labor camp.

In the latest Chronicle of Current Events, an underground human rights document published in the West by Amnesty International, the 200-year-old prison is described as the scene of beatings and other harsh punishments.

The publication says prisoners have protested prison food is rotten, the soup watered and that complainers have been forced to work 10-hour days.

It was in Vladimir that author Alexander Solzhenityn was held before being shipped to the prison camps that inspired his Gulag Archipelago books.

IOC Jockeying On Debt Fears

LAUSANNE (Reuter) — The International Olympic Committee believes Los Angeles can still host the 1984 games by "sub-letting" them to a private corporation which would cover any financial losses, IOC sources said Wednesday.

The sources said IOC president Lord Killanin hopes to discuss this and other possible compromise solutions with Los Angeles authorities within the next few weeks.

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley said Tuesday he would recommend that the city withdraw its bid to stage the Olympics after the IOC rejected its proposal that a private corporation take over financial responsibility for the Games.

Both sides had exchanged several telex messages Wednesday, and Mayor Bradley had suggested a new meeting between city officials and Lord Killanin, the IOC sources said.

An IOC statement said Los Angeles had asked for a one-month extension of the July 31 deadline by which it has to sign a contract with the IOC, and would like to meet Lord Killanin before the new deadline expires.

Lord Killanin informed Robert Kane, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, that he had a heavy schedule but might be able to meet Los Angeles representatives in Europe, it added.

Lord Killanin, who held urgent talks here Wednesday morning when he stopped over briefly on his way back from the African Games in Algiers, said in the message to Kane that he could extend the contract deadline "to August 21 should you or Mayor Bradley request it."

IOC sources pointed out that this would give the committee time to study the situation before the next scheduled IOC executive committee meeting to be held August 30-31.

Freedom of Information

In June, 1977, the federal government issued a policy paper on possible freedom of information legislation in Canada. Six months later this paper was referred to an all-party committee of Parliament for study and now, yet another six months later, the all-party committee has reported back.

The original paper suggested that the government should have such a wide range of exemptions from any requirements to disclose information that it seemed unlikely it would ever have to disclose a single fact that it wouldn't have disclosed anyway. Worse, it said that the cabinet minister in charge of each department should have the final say in whether or not information should be exempted from any proposed law.

The all-party committee has modified this somewhat: it says it is "of the opinion that the list of proposed exemptions set out for discussion purposes in the (government's) green paper is far too broad and ill-defined, leaving too much discretion to the government." Instead it submits its own list of proposed criteria for exemption. Among the information the government would not have to disclose would be:

- "Documents the disclosure of which would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy."
- "Documents prepared expressly for or in connection with the deliberations or decisions of the cabinet or of a cabinet committee, but not including documents composed of mainly factual or statistical material."
- "Documents containing matter in the nature of an opinion, advice or recommendation prepared by (a civil servant) and submitted to an agency or department for consideration in the performance of any function leading to the making of a decision or the formulation of a policy."
- "Documents the disclosure of which could be reasonably expected to be detrimental for federal-provincial relations."

These exemptions are in addition to the traditional and generally-accepted ones dealing with material concerning national defence, international relations or law enforcement.

It seems it would be the obtuse government department indeed that couldn't take advantage of at least one of those clauses to keep secret anything it didn't want to disclose. For heaven's sake, these days if the federal government states anything more controversial than the state of the Ottawa weather, it's liable to damage federal-provincial relations.

However, the committee does recommend one significant change to the government paper. It insists that a final appeal to the federal court ought to be available for citizens whose requests for government information are turned down, rejecting firmly the government's suggestion that this would diminish the traditional doctrine of ministerial responsibility. Quoting a study by Victoria law professor Murray Rankin, the committee says: "To hand the final decision on disclosure of information to the unreviewable discretion of a minister who is hardly a disinterested party would make a sham of any system of access to government documents." We couldn't agree more.

Despite the wide range of exemptions which would still be permitted, Conservative MP Jed Baldwin, a member of the all-party committee and a long-time advocate of freedom of information legislation, still believes the government will be reluctant to go as far as the report suggests. He suspects the government will be unwilling to accept the idea of a final appeal to the courts and will also object to the list of specific exemption criteria rather than the old generalization of "national security."

"It is anticipated that the government will require much public pressure to act on the basic recommendations contained in the report," writes Baldwin. If that is so, then the public should start putting the pressure on immediately.

For if the government is not willing to go the little distance that the committee has recommended, it will enact, not freedom of information legislation, but freedom-of-the-government-to-withhold-information legislation.

Independent Investigation

Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf ought to screw up his courage and withstand the withering blasts from the Quest Star Society and stick to his original announcement of an independent investigation of the destruction of the schooner Freelance.

No doubt this will be taken as more "carping criticism of armchair admirals," in Dr. Philip Ney's descriptive alliteration, but when thousands of dollars in public funds vanish in an accident, the public deserves an impartial accounting. It is just good sense to have an outsider prepare that accounting, not mischievous or malicious.

Ney, the chief spokesman for the society, noted in a letter to the editor last week the numerous qualifications of the crew assembled to bring the schooner up to Victoria, the fine work done by the society with its other boat, the Robertson II.

Which is all wonderful. But neither Ney nor Bawlf nor anyone else connected with the unlucky, abortive voyage has answered the crucial question: with a crew of such professional skill and $12,000 worth of brand new equipment and navigational gear aboard, how did the schooner end up on a reef?

The Quest Star Society investigation may be able to answer it. It may be able to explain the accident. But credibility and propriety demand that someone outside the group responsible for losing the Freelance, someone without an emotional stake in the affair, do the investigating. To do otherwise is a blatant conflict of interest.

". . . he's gone through a remarkably successful stage in his life . . . he actually qualified for welfare . . ."

No New News in Quebec

QUEBEC — News media organizations in Québec have thrown cold water on the Québec government's plans for creation of a Québec news agency.

Communications Minister Louis O'Neill has been talking about a Québec news agency ever since the Parti Québecois government was elected, arguing that it would provide better coverage of regional news in the province and present a better image of Québec abroad.

But a government-commissioned study released last week revealed that most Québec news media are wary of any government involvement in the project.

Little Interest

And the study showed that few news organizations are interested in initiating such a project themselves.

The idea of a Québec news agency has been floating around the province since the early 1960s. Unions, journalists and Québec nationalist groups first made the recommendation, former Union Nationale premier Daniel Johnson later picked it up and the Parti Québecois inscribed it in its official program.

The idea has been fuelled by dissatisfaction with the Québec coverage provided by the French service of Canadian Press (CP).

CP is a news gathering co-operative financed mainly by Canada's daily newspapers. While the French service of CP has gained some autonomy, it is administered by CP's head office in Toronto.

The French service is occasionally criticized in Quebec for being "just a translation service" of the English news wire that lacks the resources to cover anything more than the big news in Montreal, Québec City or Ottawa.

The PQ government has suggested creation of a complementary news agency to CP that would specialize in regional news features. It would be a cooperative non-profit organization relying on subscriptions for its revenue.

Communications Minister O'Neill has made it clear the government does not want to initiate the project "because there are people who get nervous when we speak about a news agency. Right away they may suspect us of trying to influence the news."

But O'Neill sees no reason why the government could not help with financial grants. The government is prepared to pick up the estimated $2 million annual deficit that would result from a Québec news agency complementing CP's coverage in the province.

The news media do not see matters the same way, according to the report. Any government funding whatsoever would leave them skeptical about the independence and objectivity of the agency.

While 10 of Québec's 14 daily newspapers said they had no objection to a Québec news agency in principle, most said they would have to wait six months or a year before deciding whether the news service material filled their needs enough to join.

The report reaches the conclusion that a new press agency in Québec must rely both on the massive support of daily newspapers and the disappearance of CP in the Québec market if it is to succeed.

O'Neill denied the report seems to bury the idea of a Québec news agency once and for all. "It needs time to ripen," he told reporters while giving assurances the PQ government is not trying to put CP out of business in Québec.

The report advises the government to act with extreme prudence. "It is fundamental for the government to assure from the beginning that the promoters of such an enterprise have great credibility with the Québec news media."

Eventual Reality

"O'Neill believes that because a large number of Québec journalists have expressed support for the idea over the years, a Québec news agency will eventually becomes a reality, "especially if Québec becomes independent."

But, like much in the government's recent white paper on cultural development, there are no plans now for government intervention. Former newsman René Levesque knows that the press has to be treated carefully.

The Parti Québecois government is in a difficult enough position already without trying to tinker with the workings of the Québec press.

Let's Smile

One can't help but notice the increased number of out of province license plates on cars these days. It seems that tourists are coming to British Columbia in greater and greater numbers.

Some say it's the weather; others say it's the $1.10 exchange on the American dollar and even others say it's because of Grace McCarthy's Smile campaign. Whatever the reason, I'm glad that visitors to our province are coming and enjoying the beauty of B.C. and I certainly hope that they will come again and again. Our province has a lot to offer the tourist and we as citizens benefit from the revenue left behind.

Come on, British Columbians, let's smile. We have every reason to. — John Salvador, 10013-3rd Street, Sidney.

Poisoning Wolves

Sam Bawlf, Minister of Recreation and Conservation, seems intent on poisoning more wildlife without, it seems, any biological justification.

A two-zone comparison study of the wolf in relation to the caribou was begun early this year at a cost of $36,000 by the fish and wildlife branch. We understand that already about 22 wolves in one of these zones have been poisoned.

Evidently without waiting to learn of the results of this poisoning study, Bawlf is going to start a mass poisoning of wolves. (It won't only, of course, be the wolves that take the poison. Other animals and meat-eating birds will also die.)

No one is giving any justification for this poisoning program, and the biologists in the main are silent. Have they been told not to talk? Apparently no solid biological data (figures, etc.) exist as yet to justify this program. Surely no biologist could recommend any poisoning program without having the facts first.

It is even being suggested in some quarters that the fish and wildlife branch should go on strike if forced to poison wolves where there is no justification. After all you can only push truly professional wildlife protectors so far!

If the facts are available, then Bawlf simply has to provide them. If not the program should immediately be stopped. — George V. Clements, Association for the Protection of Fur-Bearing Animals, Vancouver.

Crackpot Junction

The corner of Chambers Street and Queens Avenue has been altered, presumably in the course of progress.

Beauty it has not. Convenience for the local residents it lacks. Already in the past week at least two accidents have occurred, fortunately not serious.

It appears the unsightly impedimenta placed strategically in the middle of the previously through streets are so placed to entrap the unwary, or the motorist whose memory is slightly impaired. Perhaps the brain behind the erection of this monstrosity could enlighten us.

In the meantime may I suggest the corner be renamed Crackpot Junction? Any suggestions? — Mrs. K. E. French, 1212 Queens Avenue.

Answers Needed

Dr. Ney's long letter of July 13 about the loss of the schooner Freelance (Armchair Admirals) tells what happened to that vessel after she grounded, the crew's qualifications, a bit of maritime law and so forth, but unfortunately tells nothing about the events which led up to this disaster. Before the Freelance affair is forgotten, answers to the following questions should be made public:

How long before Freelance grounded had the schooner's position been fixed, how was the position obtained, and did this information result in any change of course or speed? What was the vessel's position by dead reckoning (if any) at the time of grounding, and how far away was it from the actual position?

What were the weather and sea conditions, was the propulsion engine in operation, what navigational equipment was in use and how accurate was it at the time of grounding? Would letting go an anchor have been any help?

Will the charts and log books in use before and at the time of grounding be produced and their contents published? Who was actually on watch at the time of grounding and immediately before?

The government and private individuals should obtain comprehensive answers to these and related questions concerning the Freelahce incident before investing any more money in ventures of this kind. — Donn Carmichael, 3974 Telegraph Bay Road.

Good Concert

The letter, Bad Concert, from Miss Mather (Times, July 12) complaining about CBC's Dominion Day show at Centennial Square struck me as particularly ironic. It made me wonder what is Dominion Day for anyway?

According to Miss Mather's letter, it is to celebrate B.C. talent. She seems particularly insulted that an "eastern Canadian" (Mlle. Renée Claude) should be brought in and then reveals her complete ignorance of Canadian culture by inferring that Mlle. Claude is an amateur.

Renée Claude has enjoyed a well-deserved reputation as an international star since the late 1960s. If there are still people in this farflung outpost of the dominion who have never heard of some of our country's greatest stars, then the CBC has a duty to acquaint us with them. So what is wrong with featuring an eastern Canadian on Dominion Day?

I attended this concert and thought it was great, as did most of the people around me. I wonder if the "quick survey" Miss Mather made consisted entirely of the gentleman who closed the concert by shoving Mlle. Claude off the stage before she could perform the encore requested by the audience — ça swing a Victoria! — Douglas Koch, 415-243 Gorge Road East.

Food Commission

Most Canadians are now fully aware that a People's Food Commission is in progress. This commission began in a voluntary way among some persons who were evaluating an educational program for a large inter-church constituency. It quickly became inclusive of all Canadian citizens — especially those not in the food power structures. Endorsations have been received from 86 organizations.

Your organization can endorse the commission by writing to the B.C. Regional Office, 2524 Cypress Street, Vancouver V6J 3N2, or by contacting the local chairperson, Ms. Nancy Stuart at 595-2260.

Most of the work of the commission is being carried out by volunteer labor; expenses are met by gifts from individuals and organizations. You are invited to contribute.

The B.C. hearings will be introduced in Vancouver by a public meeting and workshop October 20 and 21 featuring Frances Moore Lappe, author of Diet for a Small Planet and co-author of Food First. They will continue in eight centres of the province, including Victoria and Courtenay. Provision is being made to accommodate a large number of listeners.

Other provinces will follow suit until April, 1979. Continuing follow-up action is expected, and a readable report is to be compiled.

Commissioners for B.C. are Mary Rawson, regional planner in B.C. since 1960 and John W. Warnock, political economist, author, and Naramata fruit grower.

If you require help in preparing a brief which expresses your insights, or if you desire further information, please contact the local working group which meets regularly at 695 Craigflower Road. Telephone Joan Hay at 386-9046.

We will be at the Saanichton fair Sept. 2-4, at the Luxton Fair Sept. 16 and 17, at the Conserver Weekend at the Newcombe Auditorium Sept. 29 to Oct. 1; a barn dance and a Dinner Through the Ages are in the works. We will be happy to meet you there. — Doris I. Bergbusch for the local working group, People's Food Commission.

Freedom Fighters?

I read the recent letter from the Canadian Aid for Southern African Refugees (CASAR) people — whoever they are — with great interest. If one were to take their letter at face value, it might appear that all the blacks in Southern Africa who have been killed since trouble erupted in that part of the world have died at the hands of white soldiery. It might also appear that there are no training camps in Angola, Zambia and Mozambique at which Namibian and Rhodesian blacks are trained as guerrillas by Cuban army personnel. They are all "refugee camps" filled with innocent women and children who have fled from white "racist persecution."

Then how does CASAR account for the thousands of black Africans who have already been gunned down by nationalist guerrillas operating from Zambia and Mozambique, their only crime being that they were considered "sellouts" to the present Rhodesian goverment?

I note that some of the $3,500 already collected and distributed by CASAR has been turned over to the Patriotic Front, so-called, of which one of the two leaders, Mugabe, is a self-confessed Marxist. Unfortunately, when Marxists are involved in what they call "wars of national liberation," they never hesitate to use the most appalling methods to force the civilian population to support them and inevitably cause their opponents, in this case both white and black Rhodesians supporting the present government, to take draconian countermeasures in self-defence.

Then, by the skilful use of words, in which "terrorist" suddenly becomes "freedom-fighter" and "training camp" becomes "refugee camp," etc., the whites in Southern Africa are cleverly made out to be the only villains in the case.

The trouble is that some people will fall for it. — Peter Gage, 308-250 Douglas Street.

Aspirin Use

I read in the Times of July 13 the article about aspirin being helpful in alleviating strokes, four a day being suggested.

Here is an extract from the July issue of Prevention magazine for better health: "A study has shown that even a small dose of aspirin can triple the amount of vitamin C the body excretes. Aspirin depletes not only vitamin C, but folate as well. Researchers have found that the routine use of aspirin can lead to a folate deficiency. Folate is one of the B complex vitamins. Concentrated in the spinal fluid, it's a must for clear thinking and calm nerves." — Anne Sherwood, 1968 McTavish Road, Sidney.

'Tropical Diseases' On the Rise

By HAROLD M. SCHMECK Jr.
New York Times

Open sewers like this in Pakistan are breeding places for crippling parasites

In many undeveloped nations, engineers are building dams for better irrigation and pushing roads across tropic lowlands and up through mountain valleys along turbulent streams. It sounds like progress, with bigger and better crops and better transportation through previously isolated areas. But there is an unexpected price to be paid: an increase in tropical diseases, ancient maladies that have devastated the lives of many generations and today afflict hundreds of millions of people.

The World Health Organization and the United Nations Development Program are now engaged in a global counter-attack against the worst of these diseases. Even the World Bank is part of the enterprise, because tropical diseases are a malign influence with economic and social consequences reaching far beyond the countries directly affected.

"Tropical diseases affect every aspect of human life from childhood onwards, and even when they don't kill they are debilitating," said a recent publication of the World Health Organization. "They can disable an entire population, prevent the planting and reaping of crops, cause the abandonment of fertile and potentially productive land and increase the effort required for survival."

Few victims live in the West; many parasite diseases will not thrive in temperate regions. Still, almost any of them can turn up on a one-at-a-time basis by importation from the tropics. In fact, the Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta recently warned of the danger of spreading Lassa fever, a rare, deadly disease apparently confined to Africa, by transporting Lassa fever patients to Western treatment centres on commercial aircraft. Since 1969, eight such patients have been flown to Europe and the United States.

The link between the advance of civilization and the increase of tropical diseases is this: development projects, although often vital to emerging nations, can create more pools for snails and mosquito larvae and bring more people within range of the tiny blackflies that breed in the fast-flowing streams of some tropical countries. The snails harbor schistosomiasis parasites. The mosquitos spread malaria, and the blackflies transmit the parasite that causes "river blindness," a devastating disease that has led to the abandonment of whole villages in some regions of Africa.

River blindness, or onchocerciasis, is a stark example. It is transmitted by a blackfly named Simulium damnosum that breeds in oxygen-rich warm water such as that of mountain streams of the tropics. The bite of the female blackfly may transmit the river blindness parasite, which grows slowly into a thread-like worm more than a foot long. The worms live for years in their human victims and produce millions of embryos that spread through the skin, often reaching the eyes and slowly causing blindness.

Every child

W.H.O. estimates that 200 million human beings are afflicted with schistosomiasis and 300 million with filariasis, the group of parasite diseases that includes river blindness. Malaria is thought to afflict at least 200 million. In tropical Africa it is said that almost every child over the age of one year is infected with malaria parasites and that at least a million African children die of the disease each year. Often one person will suffer from several parasite infections at once.

Asked whether we are winning or losing the battle against tropical diseases, some experts, among them Dr. B. H. Kean of Cornell University Medical College, answer promptly that we are losing. He notes that malaria, for example, seemed almost conquered in the decade or so after the Second World War. But since then mosquitoes have become resistant to pesticides, and the malarial parasite has learned to cope with some of the more widely used drugs.

India's experience is a tragic example. There were an estimated 75 million malaria cases in 1935, compared with only about 60,000 in 1962, when a nation-wide control campaign was at the peak of effectiveness. By the mid-1970's the number had crept up to more than 4 million again as the dollar costs of eradication soared and the sources of disease developed resistance to the measures used against them.

Although schistosomiasis is an ancient affliction, it has recently been called a "disease of rural development." After their period of growth in the fresh-water snails, the parasites swim free in the waters of infested ponds and lakes and burrow into the skin of agricultural workers who spend long hours in the water.

Schistosomiasis increased in Egypt and the Sudan after the building of the Aswan High Dam, and in Ghana, Nigeria and the Gezira region of the Sudan after other water and irrigation projects had been built. The disease is not a great killer, but its victims become debilitated through effects on such organs as the bladder, the liver and the intestinal tract. The end results are a bloated belly, with the rest of the body emaciated. The victim's energies are sapped by nausea, bouts of diarrhea and loss of blood through the urine.

New crops

The planners of water projects in the Gezira region of the Sudan kept malaria at bay for a time by frequent draining of irrigation channels. This killed the mosquito larvae. But introduction of new crops that required water continually, including rice, gave the malarial parasites a better chance, and malaria has become a significant problem.

Several American universities prominent in the fields of medicine and public health are doing important research in a broad range of tropical diseases, including the parasite infections, and some of the dread virus bacterial maladies such as dengue fever, cholera and leprosy. The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases sponsors research costing more than $20 million a year on tropical health. This is almost half the world total of spending on such work.

In a speech to the World Health Organization last year, President Carter pledged American support for the new program of research in tropical diseases being developed by W.H.O. and the United Nations Development Program. Noting that health and economic development are closely linked, the president made it clear that tropical diseases are a matter of grave concern because of the social and economic havoc these chronic illnesses produce in a large part of an increasingly interdependent world.

A Chance to Earn Money for Fine

By LEONARD SHIFRIN

OTTAWA — For those without money, the choice between paying a fine and going to jail is no choice at all — except in Saskatchewan.

Under a unique program called the "fine option," an impecunious offender in that province can opt to work off his or her fine in a community service job instead of sitting it out in a jail cell. Calculated at the minimum wage rate, a $100 fine, for example, means roughly 30 hours of community service.

Last year almost 5,000 Saskatchewaners chose to clean up parks, shovel snow for senior citizens, repair torn library books and so on, rather than go to jail. And by doing so they saved their provincial government more than $1.5 million in jail costs.

Considering the obvious benefits for the offender, the community and the provincial coffers, the most remarkable thing about the three-year-old program is that it has yet to be emulated elsewhere.

But that may not be so for long.

The British Columbia government, under the prodding of the province's John Howard Society, is reportedly on the verge of setting up a similar program. And Ottawa's recently-announced criminal law reform package includes provision for fine option in provinces which establish such programs.

Actually, it's not at all clear that the federal action was necessary, in view of the fact that Criminal Code offences accounted for fully a third of all those for which the fine option was exercised in Saskatchewan last year.

According to federal officials, the proposed amendment is designed to eliminate any uncertainty about the constitutionality of that experience as well as to "symbolically" endorse the concept.

A profile of last year's 4,909 Saskatchewan fine option program participants is a profile of the province's poor.

Only 16 per cent, for example, were employed, 73 per cent were native people and almost half had less than a grade eight education.

Enabling those with jobs to carry out their community service assignments in evenings and weekends is only one of the ways in which the program has tried to match the assignment to the offender.

Margery Heath, who has been director of the program since its inception, sees it very much in social development terms.

Court option Pioneered By Sask.

She is proudest of such things as the Indian teenager, a school drop-out and alcoholic, who was assigned to a municipal library when he was found to have an interest in books. Today an ex-alcoholic, he is still at the library — but as a full-time employee.

Other success stories include the several people assigned to the humane society because of their interest in animals who have since become active volunteers with the agency.

Similarly, on such projects as painting senior citizens' centres, there have been many instances of participants continuing to work as volunteers when their required hours of service ended before the job was through.

According to Heath, the presence of fine option program participants in such places as homes for the aged has had an important effect on how people in these institutions — staff included — have come to perceive offenders.

At first there was some concern, she says, because the stereotype was of a potentially dangerous criminal roaming loose in their midst. "Then they discovered that who it was that would otherwise have gone to jail was just a neighborhood kid who had gotten into some trouble."

And the fact that those who are assigned to such an institution are quasi-volunteers (not only in that they have opted to participate in the program rather than go to jail, but because their preferences have been taken into account in determining their assignments) greatly affects the attitudes they bring to it.

There is a world of difference, says Heath, between community service activity undertaken through a fine option program and that which results from a court order. (The proposed criminal law amendments would also introduce provision for a judge to sentence an offender to a period of community service rather than incarceration.)

In the latter case, the work has an essentially penal character by virtue of having been imposed by the court as a sentence. In the former, it is a job offered to the offender to enable him, in effect, to earn the money with which to pay his fine.

But because the saving for government is the same whichever approach is used, that distinction may well be overlooked in some of the less enlightened parts of the Dominion.

It would be a shame if that turns out to be the case, because mandatory work orders are most unlikely to produce any counterparts of Saskatchewan's success stories.

Summer Beyond Wishing

russell baker

A long time ago I lived in a crossroads village of northern Virginia and during its summer enjoyed innocence and never knew boredom, although nothing of consequence happened there.

Several houses of varying lack of distinction constituted the community. A dirt road meandered off toward the mountain where a bootleg still supplied whisky to the men of the countryside, and another dirt road ran down to the creek. My cousin Kenneth and I would sit on the bank and fish with earth worms. One day he killed a copperhead which was basking on a rock nearby. That was unusual.

The heat of summer was mellow and produced sweet scents which lay in the air so damp and rich you could almost taste them. Mornings smelled of purple wisteria, afternoons of the wild roses which tumbled over stone fences and evenings of honeysuckle.

Even by standards of that time it was a primitive place. There was no electricity. Roads were unpaved. In our house there was no plumbing. The routine of summer days was shaped by these deficiencies. Lacking electric lights, one went early to bed and rose while the dew was still in the grass. Kerosene lamps were cleaned and polished in an early-morning hubbub of women, and children were sent to the spring for fresh water.

This afforded a chance to see whether the crayfish population had multiplied. Later, a trip to the outhouse would afford a chance to day dream in the Sears, Roebuck Catalogue, mostly about shotguns and bicycles.

With no electricity, radio was not available for pacifying the young. One or two people did have radios that operated on mail-order batteries. About the size of a present-day battery, but these were not for children, though occasionally you might be invited in to hear Amos 'n' Andy.

All I remember about Amos 'n' Andy at that time is that it was strange hearing voices come out of furniture. Much later I was advised that listening to Amos 'n' Andy was racist and was grateful that I hadn't heard much.

In the summer no pleasures were to be had indoors. Everything of delight occurred in the world outside. In the flowers there were hummingbirds to be seen with tiny wings fluttering so fast that the birds seemed to have no wings at all.

In the heat of mid-afternoon the women would draw the blinds, spread blankets on the floor for coolness and nap, while in the fields the cattle herded together in the shade of spreading trees to escape the sun. Afternoons were absolutely still, yet filled with sounds.

Bees buzzed in the clover. Far away over the fields the chug of an ancient steam-powered threshing machine could be faintly heard. Birds rustled under the tin porch of the roof.

Rising dust along the road from the mountains signaled an approaching event. A car was coming. "Car's coming" someone would say. People emerged from houses. The approaching dust was studied. Guesses were hazarded about whom it might contain.

Then — a big moment in the day — the car would cruise past. "Who was it?" "I didn't get a good look." "It looked like Packy Painter to me." "Couldn't have been Packy. Wasn't his car."

The stillness resettled itself as gently as the dust, and you could wander past the henhouse and watch a hen settle herself to perform the mystery of laying an egg. For livelier adventure there was the field that contained the bull. There, one could test his courage by seeing how far he dared venture before running back through the fence.

The men drifted back with the falling sun, steaming with heat and fatigue, and washed in tin basins with water hauled to buckets from the spring. I knew a few of their secrets, such as who kept his whisky hidden in a mason jar behind the lime barrel, and what they were really doing when they excused themselves from the kitchen and stepped out into the orchard and stayed out there laughing too hard.

I also knew what the women felt about it, though not what they thought. Even then I could see that matters between women and men could become very difficult and, sometimes, so difficult that they spoiled the air of summer.

At sunset people sat on the porches. As dusk deepened, the lightning bugs came out to be caught and bottled. As twilight edged into night, a bat swooped across the road. I was not afraid of bats then, although I feared ghosts, which made the approach of bedtime in a room where even the kerosene lamp would quickly be doused seem terrifying.

I was even more afraid of toads and specifically of the toad which lived under the porch steps and which everyone assured me would, if touched, give me warts. One night I was allowed to stay up until the stars were in full command of the sky. A women of great age was dying in the village and it was considered fit to let the children stay abroad into the night. As four of us sat there we saw a shooting star and someone said, "make a wish."

I did not know what that meant. I didn't know anything to wish for.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned narrowly lower as investors waited for the latest Federal Reserve Board money supply report and as expectations grew that the second-quarter corporate profit boom may not be sustained.

The Fed's money-supply report was due just after the market's close. Traders said they were encouraged by suspicions that the central bank may have detected a slowing in monetary growth and has decided against further credit-tightening policies for the present.

Airlines, which have been recording earnings gains on booming passenger traffic and which have been placing sizable orders for new planes, were among the most actively traded issues. Pan American led the most-actives, up ¼ to $7¾, while Eastern Air lines fell ⅛ to $13¾. UAL Inc. rose ⅝ to $35⅛.

Eastman Kodak was down 1¼ to $57⅝. The photo industry leader reported a better-than-anticipated 42-per-cent gain in second-quarter earnings Wednesday and was ahead 3½ in the previous session. Polaroid, which also reported improved earnings, lost ⅛ to $42. IBM was off ¾ to $269. A published report said the giant computer maker may be near the top of the industry in growth over the next year.

U.K. Takeover Bid Fails

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has turned down a British company's proposal to take over a Canadian enterprise that publishes and distributes religious records, but has not given a reason for the rejection.

The industry department reported that a bid by Pentos Ltd. of Britain to take over certain assets of The Master's Collection of Rexdale, Ont., a company that publishes religious recorded music and distributes religious musical records, tapes and sheet music, was not allowed.

It was the only one of 20 proposals rejected.

Among those allowed were:

— A proposal by Baxter Minerals Ltd. of Sudbury, Ont., which is 80 per cent U.S.-controlled, to set up a new business in Sudbury called Yale Associates Limited Partnership to explore, develop and mine metals, except uranium.

— A proposal by Beaufort Navigation (Western) Ltd., jointly controlled by Canadian, U.S., Danish, British, and Brazliain interests, to set up a business in Vancouver to act as a shipping agent.

— A proposal by Antoine Benoit, a resident of France, and by Guy Gerin-Lajoie and Michel LeBlanc, both Canadian residents, to set up a business in Montreal called Organification Antoine Benoit (Canada) Ltee to provide real estate development planning services.

— A proposal by Borg Textiles Ltd. of Elmira, Ont., a U.S.-controlled company, to acqure certain assets of U.S.-controlled Uniroyal Ltd., Lindsay, Ont., a company that makes rubber, chemicals, and plastic products.

— A proposal by Burtco Co. Inc. of Seattle, Wash., to set up a business in Vancouver called Burtco Services Ltd. to provide temporary and permanent housing, dining and camp services to industry and government.

— A proposal by Redpath Sugars Ltd.-Les Sucres Redpath Ltee (Redpath Sugars), Toronto, which is British-controlled, to acquire at some future date control of a business probably to be established in London, Ont., by a partnership consisting of Redpath Sugars, Labatt's Ltd. of London, Ont., and Ault Foods Ltd., Winchester, Ont. The latter two companies are controlled by John Labatt Ltd. (Labatt), London, Ont. The shares of the new business, to be called Zymaize Inc., would at the outset be held equally by the Redpath group and by the Labatt group. Zymaize would operate a cornstarch sweetener plant to produce high fructose syrup from domestically grown corn.

— A proposal by Reed Stenhouse Companies Ltd., Toronto, a Scottish-controlled company, to take control of URI Holdings Ltd., a holding company in Toronto, and of Universal Reinsurance Intermediaries Ltd., a Toronto Reinsurance broker.

U.K. Faces Deadline On Airbus Decision

PARIS (AP) — Britain will have to decide quickly whether it intends to rejoin the European consortium Airbus Industrie and participate in the construction of the new B-10 model of the A-300 airbus, a company official said this week.

The B-10 aircraft, a smaller version of the B-2 and B-4 models of the A-300, is expected to be certified airworthy in 1982. Deliveries are scheduled to start later that year or in early 1983.

The consortium's members—Aerospatiale of France, Deutsche Airbus of West Germany, Fokker-VFW of Holland and CASA of Spain—are already sharing the workload and orders for materials are going out on the basis of orders in hand, the spokeswoman said.

British Aerospace, which manufactures the wings of the B-2 and B-4 versions of the airbus on a subcontract basis, will lose close to $190 million worth of business on the basis of current B-10 orders alone if the British government decides not to join the B-10 program, industry sources say.

The airbus official said under current plans, Aerospatiale and VFW-Fokker would build the wings of the B-10. British Aerospace would only get further contracts from the consortium if the British government re-enters the project—which it left some years ago—and injects a substantial amount of capital.

Airbus Industrie's order book for the B-10 currently stands at 60 planes, of which 40 are options. These include 10 firm orders and 15 options from Lufthansa, six firm orders from Swissair, four firm orders from Air France and 25 options from Eastern Airlines.

United Airlines is also said to be considering the purchase of A-300 B-10s to replace its DC8s and Boeing 727s. The airline is said to be looking for up to 50 aircraft and an order for airbuses could be worth as much as $2 billion to the European consortium.

British authorities are debating whether to come into the airbus project, accept an offer to assist in the development of the Boeing 767-200 or collaborate with Mcdonnell Douglas in building the DCX-200. The last two projects are still on the drawing board.

Influencing the British decision is the fact that the B-10 will be offered with a choice of three jet engines—the Rolls-Royce RB 211-524, the Pratt and Whitney J-19D-20 and General Electric's CF-6. The European project is said in industry circles to appear more profitable for the British aviation industry as a whole.

Industry sources say if Britain doesn't come in to the consortium again, France and Germany—the major partners of the airbus group—will end up spending considerably more on the B-10 project than they had originally intended.

Loans Completed By Hydro-Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite the success of a $100-million Hydro-Quebec bond issue this week on New York money markets, the provincially-owned utility has no plans to go to the United States for more money this year, Hydro treasurer Georges Lafond says.

"We tapped the market to the extent we needed it, and borrowing is complete for the year," Lafond said in an interview.

The 30-year bond issue, bearing an effective interest rate of 10.03 per cent, sold out immediately and traded on secondary markets at about 0.5 per cent above par. It also pushed up the trading value of earlier Hydro securities.

It was Hydro-Quebec's first public offering on Wall Street since September, 1976, two months before the the Parti Quebecois came to power.

Lafond said the fact that pension fund managers and other institutional investors have had little chance to increase their holdings of Hydro-Quebec securities in the last 22 months played an important part in the issue's success.

"We gave the investors an opportunity to take a fresh look at Hydro-Quebec," he said.

Ottawa Okays B.C. Coal Hunt

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet has approved an application by U.S.-controlled Gulf Canada Limited to set up a business that would search for coal deposits in British Columbia and Alberta, ndustry Minister Jack Horner said Thursday.

Gulf has said it will initially start three exploration projects, one a joint venture with Canadian-owned Denison Mines Limited covering 116,000 acres of coal licences in northeastern B.C.

Two smaller exploration projects will involve 9,700 acres of coal land in southwestern Alberta.

Horner said in a news release that the cabinet, which approved Gulf's bid following a recommendation from the Foreign Investment Review Agency, had noted the company's determination to find new coal reserves with a view to developing at least one new mine.

The company will spend between $20 and $30 million for exploration and feasibility studies, Horner said.

Gulf has also agreed to give Canadians a 51-per-cent interest of the B.C. project, known as the Belcourt property.

Horner added that the question of improving transportation in the Belcourt region is still under evaluation and discussion between the federal and B.C. governments.

Maritime Pact

ST. ANDREWS, N.B. (CP) — Consumer affairs ministers in the four Atlantic provinces have agreed to attempt to make existing consumer protection legislation in their provinces uniform throughout the maritimes. Nova Scotia's Consumer Affairs Minister Guy Brown announced the agreement here following a two-day meeting.

Re-Arm or Get Off Pot, McKinnon Tells Danson

Canada's armed forces should be disbanded if the federal government is not prepared to provide badly-needed new armaments, says Victoria Conservative MP Allan McKinnon.

McKinnon, his party's defence critic, said re-equipping the forces is of prime importance and would enhance Canada's role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He said Defence Minister Barney Danson double-crossed the armed forces and double-crossed him by secretly reducing promised spending on new armaments.

Danson, he said, had maintained he was keeping a long-standing policy of increasing real capital spending on defence by 12 per cent annually.

"However, when I checked recently with the financial department, I was told the real increase this year is only 2.8 per cent," McKinnon said.

"I didn't mind him taking bows for decisions that had been made by former defence minister James Richardson as long as the badly-needed new armaments were being acquired — but I won't let him get away with this."

He said Danson's explanation was that his ministry would get a further $60 million in a future year by taking a cut this year.

"Our armed forces personnel are very trusting souls, I doubt many of them realize the budget has been cut back from the amount promised."

Children No Headache For This Parks Leader

By CAROL SPELLER
Times Staff

Ah, the life of a park program leader, alias person in charge of 100 creatures under the age of 12.

Annette Kraczkowski, 19, is a University of Victoria student working for the Esquimalt summer program for children at Bullen Park.

And she doesn't believe in Anacin commercials.

"I never use the stuff.

She says prerequisites for the job are a lot of patience and a sense of humor.

Annette and two other students are leaders of two groups of children, one six to eight-year-olds and the other nine to 12-year-olds.

Out of 170 registered children, 70 to 100 show up every day to play with an earthball, work on crafts, watch a magic show at the library, try out the stilts, go on a field trip or tackle leaders.

Annette says they're like brothers and sisters and the leaders' authority is never questioned.

As for co-workers: "We all get along just fine. You've got to get along with your co-workers."

There aren't many troublemakers — only about five — and they usually just pick fights or scream in the washrooms.

However, Annette has been bitten on the arm by a youngster who was just in a bad mood. The bruise lasted a week.

There was a pile-on-the-leader day when park leader Dave Ricciuti, a 16-year-old Esquimalt Senior high student, estimated 20 little bodies were squirming over him.

One of the little bodies said it was more like 1,400.

Annette says that as a rule, they're pretty good-natured kids.

"They love sing-songs. It's one of their favorite things.

"But there is a problem with the sprinklers. They love going through the sprinklers ... with their clothes on."

Friday is special event day and scheduled for this week is a toe-painting contest and water fight.

Seems the youngsters will be painting their legs for artistic design, creativity and originality and then hosing each other off.

Injuries include the normal scraped knees and elbows, bruises and bleeding noses, but leaders have basic first aid skills for emergencies.

Annette praises parents for offering transportation for outings or helping when an extra hand is needed around the park.

"But when a kid is hyperactive, sometimes parents sorta forget to tell us."

He says it's an interesting job and "I just laugh it all off."

Illegal Fishing Reports Exaggerated: Officials

Reports that up to 40 per cent of commercial net fishermen are engaged in illegal fishing practices were dismissed as exaggeration by spokesmen for the federal fisheries service Wednesday.

Tom Moojalsky, of the department's enforcement section in Vancouver, said while he has no way of knowing the extent of illegal fishing, the 40-per-cent allegation seems to be at least double the true proportion.

"I would say there are probably 80 per cent of them who would never do anything wrong," he said.

"Then there's another 10 per cent or so who, no matter what you do, they're hard-core violators. And the remainder are opportunists who, if they figure they can get away with it, they'll probably try."

Howard English, an adviser to the Sports Fishing Advisory Committee, said earlier that a commercial fisherman had provided the 40 per cent estimate of those net fishermen fishing illegally, as well as descriptions of some of the methods used.

Among these was the charge that fishermen violate closure regulations by fishing seven days a week in a well-organized pack system, in which one vessel acts as lookout while the other fish.

In Victoria, deputy fisheries director Barry Huber said he was upset at the reported allegations, which amounted to little more than hearsay.

"In my dealings with commercial fishermen I would say the majority are very conscious of the regulations and operate within the law, as do most of the native Indian people and the sports fishermen," he said.

Huber conceded, however, that the department is aware of violations in which one fishing boat acts as lookout for another while fishing during a season closure.

"That's an old problem; there's nothing new in that. If they're in packs of seven or eight, that's entirely possible. I can't discredit it and equally I can't say it's going on."

Huber said although the vacationing department director, Larry Duke, may be aware of the charges, as far as he knows the department has not been informed of the complaints concerning illegal net fishing.

A similar statement came from Moojalsky.

"We know there is some fishing going on during the closed times and that the people are well-organized, but we don't have any names or anything," he said.

"The information we get is so scant that we can't even target on it because we don't know where to go. If we had some reliable information we might be able to set up a program whereby we could get something on them."

The department has about 80 fisheries officers responsible for the entire B.C. coastline as well as the Interior. Moojalsky said it is preparing a submission for Ottawa seeking more manpower.

Police Still Hunting Drug Vessel

RCMP today continue their search for the 32-foot troller Sunfish which was believed to have been associated with two other vessels seized by police in last Saturday's 13-ton marijuana bust near Tofino.

Superintendent Scotty Gardiner said there were reports of a possible sighting of the vessel overnight, but declined to say where.

The Weatherly, a 70-foot former federal fisheries patrol boat, owned by Robert Sherman Miller, one of 15 men arrested in the drug bust, had about $11,000 work done on her at Capital City Shipyards, 130 Kingston.

Shipyard workers said today the boat was repainted, her decks recaulked, engines overhauled and new bilge pumps installed.

The boat, which was built in Vancouver in 1942, came into the shipyard dock in October, but work didn't get underway on her until about a month later, after the Weatherly sprung leaks and began to sink. The ship was submerged up to her decks before she was hauled out, pumped dry and gone over from stem to stern, a workman said.

Another employee said work on the Weatherly was done sporadically with sometimes nothing being done at all and at other times intense activity.

She said sometimes 10 or 11 men would suddenly show up for work on the boat but usually it was only Miller and two other men.

"The last week before it went out they were in a big hassle to get it ready," she said.

Shipyard workers also said the Sunfish, also owned by Miller, underwent some minor repairs this spring.

The workers said the Sunfish is well-known on the coast and described Miller and a co-worker as successful commercial fishermen.

Meanwhile, police have completed an inventory of weapons confiscated in the bust.

Gardiner said the weapons included two shotguns, five rifles, and one inoperable handgun, all of North American manufacture. In addition there was a quantity of ammunition seized.

Two of the weapons were seized on the shore of Obstruction Island, five were found on the Weatherly and one, which had been wrapped in a plastic bag and thrown overboard, was recovered from the water.

Gardiner said he had no idea how many weapons crew members had aboard the Weatherly.

There were reports of numerous weapons being tossed overboard as police and armed forces personnel closed in during the dawn raid on Saturday.

The destruction of the 13 tons of marijuana seized by police went off without a hitch, Gardiner said.

The drug, contained in 439 bails, was incinerated at the North Cowichan municipal dump on Wednesday.

The operation took four hours, less than half the time police had expected it would take.

Two of the bails and a random sampling — about 150 pounds — were saved for evidence in the court case.

Five of the 15 men charged in connection with the bust have been released on bail.

Another bail hearing is scheduled for Friday for Neil Maxwell Kennedy, 26, of Toronto. He had been remanded for hearing until next Tuesday but on Wednesday asked to have it moved forward.

BOAT EXPLODES, OWNERS DIVE

A man and his wife narrowly escaped serious injury Wednesday afternoon when their $30,000 pleasure boat exploded in flames near Bosun's Marina in North Saanich.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Anderson of 9588 Ardmore Drive were just pulling out of the marina about 4 p.m. when problems developed in the boat's engine.

Anderson had no sooner turned off the engine when there was an explosion and the rear of the boat was engulfed in flames.

The Andersons were on the flying bridge at the time and had to crawl around to the bow where they jumped overboard.

A Sidney police spokesman said the boat was fully insured.

Ask the Times

Q. I've always been curious about the word posh which British people seem to use a lot. Can you tell me where it comes from? G.W.

A. In the old days before cruise ships had air conditioning the Pacific and Orient Line used to sail to the Orient. Passengers who could afford it would book cabins on the port side to the Orient to avoid the sun and the starboard side for the same reason on the way back. POSH, then, meant Port Out Starboard Home.

Q. Can you tell me where the bird Wahhabi is found? J.B.W.

Full Hotels, Few Ships, But Visitors Flock In

Fortunately, tourists have a sense of humor.

The Causeway tourist bureau is jammed with a record number of visitors and many of them are asking: What happened to the Tall Ships?

"They take in in good humor when we explain the program has been revised," one Visitors Information Centre worker said.

"They express surprise that the word was not sent to Seattle or wherever they came from but otherwise they are happy with Victoria.

"The sun is shining and that helps. And there are a lot of boats in the harbor. And they will get to see one Tall Ship this week, so they will have something to talk about."

The Eagle is scheduled to sail in at about 4 p.m. today and dock in the Inner Harbor.

People working in the downtown tourist attractions also report a record turnout of happy visitors.

"We have heard no complaints at all," Classic Car Museum manager Al Frame said.

"All the attractions are doing well. We are getting a good spillover from the Capt. Cook festival and other provincial government promotional campaigns."

Frame said the bonus on the U.S. dollar and the tourist blitzes organized by Victoria groups also helped to draw this summer's crowd.

"Receipts in American dollars has increased and we are also getting a lot of traffic from Alberta, and surprisingly, from Quebec. We had 11 French-Canadians from Quebec here during our first hour this morning."

Victoria area hotels and motels hung up the sold-out sign by 6 p.m. Wednesday and the Visitors Information Centre used all of its emergency housing units in private homes.

Some tourists were still looking for accommodation at 10:30 p.m. and a few had to go as far away as Duncan.

However, the bureau believes all people seeking accommodation were able to find it.

Things may be a little tougher this weekend when the crowd reaches its peak.

"The phones are just about ringing off the wall, especially calls from Seattle," a VIC worker said.

"We tell them the Tall Ship program has been revised, because we don't want anyone to come here without knowing all the facts. Many of them will be coming despite the changes."

Taxi companies report a booming business during the day, especially with U.S. tourists.

But the nights are quiet. Fewer Victorians are travelling by taxi at night because some pubs are closed due to the beer shortage.

The Capt. Cook regatta is being held Saturday and closing ceremonies will be held Sunday, finishing with a fireworks display at 10 p.m.

Last Youth Jobs Tough to Land

There are still a few jobs available for young people in Victoria but it is three times as difficult to get one as it was one month ago.

"The number of jobs has fallen to 25 per cent of what was available in June," says Susan Vallor, officer of charge of the Youth Employment Centre.

"Most employers have done their hiring for the summer. There are some jobs available but it is more difficult to find them than it was in June.

Vallor will be conducting the course at 10:30 a.m. Friday at the centre.

She said a few jobs are opening up in the hospitality industry and others become available because some students quit work to take a vacation.

"Young people shouldn't give up just because the number of summer jobs has declined."

She said in the course she will urge the young people to be realistic in dealing with potential employers.

"For one thing, many of them are unrealistic about wages. Some say they won't work for less than $3 an hour. Some want much more."

The minimum wage is $2.60 for a worker under 18, but $3 for those 18 and up.

"They forget that, to an employer, $2.60 is a lot of money when you consider the cost of fringe benefits as well. Many employers would just as soon hire an adult at $3 an hour as pay $2.60 to someone who has never worked before.

"The young people really have to sell themselves, even for $2.60 an hour. It is surprising the number of people 17 or 18 who have never worked in their lives. Some of their expecations are quite unrealistic.

"Others have absolutely no idea how to find work. Most of them turn out to be good workers if someone will give them a chance."

Vallor said she will stress personal appearance and a positive attitude during interviews.

"Most employers know within the first five minutes whether they are going to hire you or not. Think what happens if you are five minutes late for the interview. It's all over before you start.

"It's better to be over-dressed than sloppy. But young people should wear clothes appropriate for the job. Remember, working is not disco time."

Young people should also be observant.

"If all employees are over 50 the company is not likely to hire a teenager. Also if everyone has a crewcut, obviously they are not hiring people with long hair.

"Young people are wasting their time by going to places where they have no appropriate skills or where it is obvious they would not fit it.

"If there is no job, they should ask the employer if they should come back in a week's time and try again. It is important to listen carefully to the answer. If you are invited back, be sure to do so or you may miss getting the job.

"If there is little chance for the employee, however, this is the time the employer will let the person know. If he is negative, why go back? It is just wasting time."

Vallor said there is no guarantee that all young people taking the course will get jobs but many of them will get good leads out of the discussion.

It's a little difficult finding work right at the moment but it's far from impossible.

ROXBURGH LEADS

Super Shot From Trees All in Vain

By DOUG PEDEN
Times Sports Editor

Rob Sherstobitoff hit what was probably the most spectacular shot of the day Tuesday at Uplands Golf Club and for a time the tall 19-year-old from Castlegar hoped he was the first-round leader in the British Columbia Amateur golf championship.

Unfortunately for Rob, the mighty blow eventually didn't count and, after waiting though 30 anxious minutes for a ruling, he had to settle for a share of fourth place.

That position was two strokes off the pace set by Doug Roxburgh, the five-time champion from Vancouver who surprised nobody, except perhaps himself, by grabbing the first-day lead. Shooting for a third successive title, Roxburgh fired an even-par 70 over the 6,278-yard course that, as usual, confused many contestants with its deceptive difficulty.

Trailing the defending-champion by a single stroke were two American Scotts — Seattleite Scott MacPherson and Scott Alexander of Bremerton.

Sherstobitoff was at 72 in a group that included Sandy Harper of Nanaimo, Vancouverites Dick Zokol and Andy Girling, who carded an eagle on the par-five seventh hole, and Victorians Stu Holroyd and Rick Gibson, the 16-year-old provincial high school champ.

Island Open and Victoria City Amateur titleholder Dave Mick, jolted by double bogeys on the 15th and 16th and aided by a birdie on the tough 18th, was in a nine-player logjam at 73. With Mick were Brian Rands of the host club, Qualicum's Ross Logan, Steve Chapman of Prince George and a Vancouver-area quintet — two-time provincial king Johnny Russell, Harry White, 1974 winner Bob Mitchell, Brian Christie and Brian Ecclestone, the Vancouver junior champion.

Kwan Choong Choo from Kuala Lampur was in a six-man gang at 74 along with the Victoria quartet of Mike Gray, Gordie Rands, Dave McCall and John Russell, and Mainlanders Frank Bayuk and Blake Cook.

Roxburgh might have been somewhat surprised by his position because he could not recall ever holding the first-day lead in the Amateur but, despite matching par, he was "not happy" with his game.

"My whole swing seemed wrong at the start and I struggled through the first six holes," he commented. "However, I think I cured a few things on the first six."

The early struggle left Roxburgh two over par and the "cure" enabled him to stage one of his frequent displays of superb iron shots. Apparently the remedy didn't spill over onto his putting stroke and he missed some excellent birdie chances although he bagged birds on the seventh, eighth, 11th and 13th greens to work his count to two-under.

Then came three putts for a bogey on 14, another three-putt job for a par on the par-five 15th before an errant tee shot produced on the final hole produced a bogey and left Roxie even with regulation figures.

Sherstobitoff, who lost the provincial junior crown to Victoria's Jim Rutledge in a sudden-death playoff last year after letting a big lead get away on the final day, was threatening to grab the first-day glory when he went one-under with a 14th-hole bird.

Following a bogey on the next hole came a decision to "play safe" with an iron off the tee on the short par-four 16th. The "safe" swing was a disaster, sending the ball high and wide over a tangled mass of trees and brush.

With a playing companion, he found the ball in a cleared spot about 155 yards from the green. Since nobody is expected to be that far off line, the course boundary is not marked at that point and Rob elected to play the ball.

The result of a sand wedge blow was amazing. Somehow the ball found its way up, through and over trees, landing on the edge of the green. A long putt dropped and Sherstobitoff had a three with that ball.

Uncertain about the legality of the second-shot position, he also played a provisional ball, making four, and reported the incident before submitting his scorecard.

He waited about 30 minutes while tournament officials checked his 16th-hole route. They returned with a ruling that the tee shot was, indeed, out of bounds and Sherstobitoff was forced to count his second-ball score plus, of course, a penalty to make it six and Rob's hoped-for 69 had turned into a 72.

As in any tournament, there were many other heartbreaks and many other spectacular shots. Bob Hamlyn, for instance enjoyed a bit of the spectacular with an eagle on the 15th while 1970 champion Carl Schwantje suffered some of the sadness, going six over on the first four holes and later one-putting for a quadruple bogey on 15 on his way to 82.

And there was more of the same being fashioned today as contestants attempted to remain among the top 80 players that will make it into Friday's third round and, hopefully get into the low 50 and ties that will be around Uplands for Saturday's final round. Scores are on page 14.

PUTTING EFFORTS by Doug Roxburgh were not exceptional Wednesday at Uplands course, but defending champion still managed even-par 70 for first-round lead in British Columbia Amateur golf championship. (Times photo by John McKay)

Third Win For Moretti

Victoria Mussels came on a little stronger Wednesday night.

Playing what manager Jim Chapman called "more aggressive baseball", Mussels tripped Gray's Harbor Loggers 7-2 before about 300 fans at Royal Athletic Park to end the visting club's Northwest League baseball winning streak at seven games.

The Victoria product boosted his record to 3-2, striking out three and issuing two walks to lower his earned-run average to 3.98.

Moretti was backed by some spectacular defensive work, particularly by second baseman Al Alpaugh, who participated in three double plays.

Two home runs keyed the Victoria attack. Steve Kasunic bashed his first professional four-bagger with one man on base in the second inning to produce what proved to be the winning run. Doug Morganti tagged a bases-empty homer — his third of the season — to put the icing on the cake in the fifth inning.

Mussels, who scored two unearned runs in the first inning, finished off with two in the eighth on groundouts by Chapman and Alpaugh.

Meanwhile, Mussels were expected to introduce John Bush, Greg Schultz, Matt Reeves and Doug Hogan — all on loan from the Los Angeles Dodgers' Lethbridge affiliate — at a press conference this afternoon.

In other league action, Bend defeated Eugene 3-2, Walla Walla clobbered Bellingham 13-2 and Boise edged Salem, 12-11.

The Bend Timber Hawks scored all their runs on five hits in the eighth inning, erasing a five-game losing mark. Bob Hardaway singled and Dana Berry doubled to ignite the outburst.

Jerry Johnson and Mobil Cox combined for seven runs in leading Walla Walla over Bellingham. The Padres drew 12 walks and collected 10 hits en route to victory.

Boise reliever Dwain Robins picked up his third save of the year against Salem. He entered the contest in the eighth with base runners at second and third and yielded a single for a run. Robins escaped a bases-loaded situation in the ninth.

Stamps Shock Leos; Ticats down Riders

By The Canadian Press

The surprising Calgary Stampeders upset the B.C.Lions 23-21 before a crowd of 25,606 at McMahon Stadium in Canadian Footnall Leage action Wednesday, while at Hamilton the Tiger Cats came from far back to defeat the Saskatchewan Roughriders 27-23.

"It was a big win for us," Calgary coach Jack Gotta said. "The boys cranked up and won it."

The Stamps led 20-11 at the half on touchdowns by James Sykes, on a three-yard run, and Tom Forzani, on a nine-yard pass from quarterback John Hugnagel, plus field goals from 17 and 45 yards out by Cyril McFall.

But in the third quarter, B.C. quarterback Jerry Tagge got the Lions, who got their first-half points on a 10-yard scoring pass to Larry Key plus a field goal and a single by Lui Passaglia, moving again.

After Passaglia booted a 19-yard field goal at 5:06, Tagge began to utilize his short passing game, hitting receivers Key, Al Charuk, Terry Bailey and Leon Bright before finally finding Jim Young in the end zone from six yards out at 10:47 to move into a 21-20 lead.

McFall's third field goal of the night at 10:22 of the fourth quarter proved to the winner, as a 93-yard punt-return touchdown by Forzani was nullified by a penalty. The Lions did not give up until the end of the game, with Tagge trying to get his team at least into field-goal range.

Hamilton coach Tom Dimietroff elected to start rookie Tom Shuman at quarterback but it was veteran Jimmy Jones who came off the bench to lead the Tiger-Cats to their first victory.

"I wanted to change momentum," Dimietroff said after Jones helped the Ticats to 16 points in the fourth quarter.

Canada's Mimi Just Misses

BISLEY, England (CP) — Mimi Bellefeuille, Canada's 15-year-old Annie Oakley, came within a single point Wdnesday of winning the Young Riflemen's Agreggate challenge trophy—in effect the under-25 championship—at the annual Bisley rifle competition.

The girl cadet from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., shooting against 98 competitors mostly in the 17-19 age bracket, finished second to British cadet Edward Paine by one point at 300 yards. Both had scored 49 out of 50 at 500 yards and 48 out of 50 at 600 yards.

The youngest of the Canadian contingent at Bisley, Bellefeuille has been giving a steady, consistent performance in the major target rifle events.

Her shooting throughout the events that count to the Grand Aggregate, the over-all championship, has kept her on the leaders board against 1,200 competitors.

At the completion of seven events, she was 21st over-all with 328 points, tied with Robert Barwise of Charlottetown, P.E.I..

John Marshall of New Glasgow, N.S., was top Canadian in fifth place over-all with 335 points, just two points behind an Australian and a Scot who were co-leaders.

Evans Ties Mark As Irish Take Title

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Nanaimo's Brian Evans gave it a brilliant try at Memorial Arena, Wednesday, but his nine assists, giving him a share of the Western Lacrosse Association season record for assists, wasn't enough for the Timbermen.

Victoria Shamrocks clinched their second WLA championship in the past three years as they survived a furious third-period assault by the Timbermen to take a 15-13 decision and the unofficial Island championship.

The Rocks won the league title in 1976 while Burrards took the honors last year. On the season Shamrocks had a 3-2-1 edge over the Timbermen.

Trailing 11-5 after two periods and being outplayed in an often bitter, but well-played battle, the Timbermen opened the third period with a bang, kept up a continuous assault and twice got to within two goals of the Irish before time ran out.

Leading the charge was Evans, the league scoring leader, and Kevin Alexander.

Evans got seven of his nine assists in the third period, giving him 100 for the season to tie the record set by Mike Gates of Coquitlamin 1969.

Evans now has 132 points, five more than Ron MacNeil of the Shamrocks who paced the Irish with six goals.

Meanwhile, in this battle of the league's top four shooters, Alexander came up with six goals, four in the third period, and one assist, while Norm Baker of the Rocks had three goals and one assist.

Baker has 117 points on the season and Alexander 115.

With three games remaining, Alexander has a shot at the WLA mark for goals in a season, 89, established by Bobby Allan of Nanaimo in 1956. Alexander now has 78, 11 short of Allan's all-time mark.

Defeat was Nanaimo's sixth in their last eight games. They have tied two in that time.

The game started like a tong war with the usually mild-mannered Ivan Thompson lighting the Shamrock fuse with two double minors.

The Rocks were still simmering over an incident in Vancouver, Tuesday, when Baker was felled by a two-handed slash by Ward Sanderson, then jumped on by Sanderson before Gerry Cadwallader came to the rescue.

Baker came out of the fray with a broken nose and Cadwallader got a game suspension for being third man in.

WLA commissioner Roy Burton said there may be further action because he wasn't at the game and neither was his deputy in Vancouver. "I only talked to one referee, he said, "and if I find further suspensions are warranted I will act."

At any rate, Thompson got this one lit and it stayed that way until the final period and was punctuated by a fight between Victoria's Gord Lyons and Nanaimo's Randy Noble in the penalty box just before the end of the second period and both got match penalties.

Lyons had taken three minors on the play that started the ruckus and Noble one. One second later, Ken King of the Timbermen and Dave Thomson of the Rocks became involved and, to put a cap on it, the referees banished them too. And those were two of the better moves the officials made this night.

In tremendously exciting third period, the Timbermen scored two quick goals by Alexander and Jim Guerin by pulling their goalie, Mac Maude and that's the way they played the entire period with Maude, running off and on the floor at every opportunity.

And the Shamrocks were hard put to hang on. But hang on they did as the Timbermen could get no closer than two.

Goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer of the Shamrocks made 40 saves and Maude 42 for the Timbermen.

Hit by Any Name Is Sweet to Rose

(Line scores on page 12.)

By The Associated Press

It probably was the game's least important hit—and yet it was clearly the biggest one of all.

One thing Cincinnati Reds didn't really need in the ninth inning Wednesday night was a baserunner. After all, Ken Henderson had hit a three-run homer in the seventh inning and George Foster had unloaded a grand slam in the eighth, all the clout the Reds needed to wallop Philadelphia Phillies 7-2.

But with nobody on and one out to go in the top of the ninth, there was still the matter of Pete Rose's hitting streak. Rose had grounded out twice, had struck out once and in the eighth inning had received a controversial walk.

With that, it appeared Rose's streak would end at 31 consecutive games, six shy of Tommy Holmes' National League baseball record.

But that walk started what turned out to be the Reds biggest inning and it brought him back to the plate one inning later.

"That's what happens when you play with a great offensive team," he said later.

And after one pitch, Rose was on first with a bunt single, acknowledging the cheers of 45,608 Phillies fans.

In three National League doubleheader splits, Montreal Expos defeated Atlanta Braves 8-6 and lost 3-1, San Francisco Giants beat Chicago Cubs 7-5 and lost 7-4 and Houston Astros beat New York Mets 8-3, then lost 2-1. In single games, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3and San Diego Padres beat St. Louis Cardinals 5-3.

Gorge Accepts Farmers Favors

Gorge Hotel, helped by six opposition errors, edged Farmer Construction 5-4 Wednesday in Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League play at Lambrick Park.

One error, in particular, proved costly for Farmers.

With two out in the fifth inning and Brian Meadmore of Gorge on second base, Rick Shenton singled to right-fielder Ian Hood. Meadmore came around to score the winning run when Hood's dead-on throw eluded Farmer catcher Ross Cooper.

Art Hobbs' Success Good News For Others

Sudden success for Art Hobbs is going to mean relief for the other guys still left in the fifth annual Victoria Times Public Parks tennis tournament.

Though few people had heard much about him before, Art is the chap who last weekend shocked Racquet Club of Victoria pro Russ Hartley, 6-3, 6-4, to capture the prestigious men's singles crown in the City Tennis Championships.

It's a title that poor Russ has tried in vain for three years in a row to win. Since Australian pro Ian Brady, who beat Hartley in the last two finals, had left town for Calgary, this looked his best chance yet.

Then in from Texas breezed lanky Art Hobbs with his new southern drawl, his battered hat and a few shots of the kind rarely seen around these parts.

Some tennis folk vaguely remembered Art being from Victoria in the first place. Oh yes, he played a little tennis when he was at Mt. Douglas High and was a bit of a "hacker" when he turned out with his family at the Racquet Club.

Naturally, he wasn't seeded when they sat down to make out the draw.

But two years of United States college tennis worked wonders for the not-too-impressive kid from Victoria.

"Yes, I got lucky," Art told me with modesty after his win over Hartley. "I made it onto the tennis team while at Grossmount College in San Diego, California, and then I got a tennis scholarship to McLennan Community College in Waco, Texas."

Coached in Waco by Carmack Berryman, Art Hobbs said he also played on the college tennis team there. But friends say Art Hobbs was the tennis team there.

Back in Victoria for the summer holidays and now teaching tennis out at the Peninsula Recreation Centre near Sidney, Art soon whipped up a storm in the City championships by ousting sixth seeded Joe Lachmund and seventh seeded Scott Braley, both in straight sets. Hobbs, in fact, didn't drop a set in the whole tourney.

As veteran tennis instructor Gordon Hartley (who himself twice reached the City final only to be beaten on both occasions by Ray Aldeguer) watched Hobbs dispose of his son with crisp volleys and devastating topspin lobs, he said the new champ played a "cool, intelligent game."

Hobbs left the court at the Oak Bay Tennis Club with an ear-to-ear grin and said the victory was pleasing.

"It's as pleasing as Hell, actually!" he admitted.

And what will be almost as pleasing to Times tennis tourney players is the news that Hobbs is dropping out.

You see, Art hadn't really expected to do as well as he did in the City tournament, and so (not being a club member at the moment) he put his name down, along with several of his young friends, for the Times event.

But part of the success that comes with the City crown is a berth for Hobbs on the Vancouver Island team to play in the B.C. Summer Games in Penticton Aug. 17 to 20.

(Hobbs will join Hartley, Braley and New Zealand-born Trevor Smyth on the men's squad and, as champion Sandra Moss is the only one of the semi-finalists who can go that weekend, a round-robin mini tourney is being held this week to decide the other three women's berths).

That weekend though — Aug. 19 and 20 — is the same one that our Times tourney wraps up so, as Art couldn't be in two places at once he decided to default his next match to opponent Erik Lunde.

And so, while the other Times competitors can breathe a sigh of relief, they can watch the 20-year-old Hobbs' progress at Penticton and hope that it, too, will turn out to be as "pleasing as Hell" for him.

Italian Boxer In Coma

BELLARIA, Italy (Reuter) — Italian boxer Angelo Jacopucci was in a coma after an emergency operation today for a cerebral hemorrhage after the battering he took from Britain's Alan Minter in their European middleweight title fight Wednesday night.

"Its very serious," said a doctor who was treating the fighter. "He is on the critical list."

Eaton Drives Tonight

Ron Eaton, 18 points behind leader Roy Haslam of Victoria in the points standings, has decided to continue the International Drivers' Challenge superstock series after all.

There was some question after Tuesday's second leg of the series when Eaton was penalized for hitting George Stuart of Campbell River on the final lap of the 75-lap main event, knocking him out of the lead. Officials docked Eaton two spots, from first to third, and the Tacoma driver considered dropping out of the series.

Haslam got the win as a result of the penalty with Stuart third. That gave Haslam 296 points to Eaton's 278. Bob Fox of Bremerton is third with 229.

Roy Smith of Victoria, in 13th spot with 114 points, hopes to have his new 1978 Camaro ready for tonight. His debut with the car Tuesday fizzled when he had to withdraw with ignition problems. If the timing isn't set to his satisfaction by tonight's race, which begins with time trials at 7, Smith may drive his older 1976 Nova.

Trail Downs Gordon Head

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Ray Ferraro hit two triples Wednesday, knocking in four runs to pace Trail to an 8-4 over Victoria's Gordon Head in the British Columbia prep baseball championships for 13 year olds.

Dave Duncan and reliever Ian Cameron, who came on in the sixth inning, combined to allow eight hits by Victoria.

Fort Tilden Does It Again

Fort Tilden, a seven-year-old bay horse owned by Bud Michell of Saanich and driven by Keith Linton, picked up his second straight feature victory Wednesday, nipping Deacon Brodie at the wire to win the B.C. Racing Commission Pace at Sandown Park.

Fort Tilden came from fifth place in the field to take top money of $600 in the one-mile race while equalling the track record of 2:04.

The combination of Fort Tilden and Deacon Brodie, who had won six of his seven previous starts at Sandown, paid $14.20 for a $2 exactor.

But the exactor was dwarfed by the payoff in the first race as Senga Leo, out of the money in his last four starts here, beat out Billy Adios, winless in 21 outings this year, to pay $692.60; the second-largest exactor payout of the meet.

Linton, who is the leading driver, also picked up a victory with Arrow Panaro in the sixth race to bring his total number of wins after 27 days of the 57-day meet to 36.

Dale Willard Shares Titles

Missed in wire reports of last weekend's finals in the Pan-American junior badminton tournament at Vancouver was the news that Dale Willard, from the Racquet Club of Victoria, shared two doubles crowns with Vancouver partners.

Competing in the under-14 section, Willard teamed with Jeff Bray for a victory in the boys' doubles and joined Jackie Johnston for a mixed doubles triumph.

HEAR YOU BOUGHT YOUR WIFE A NEW CAR.
NO, I LEASED.
COME ON, LEASING'S JUST FOR BUSINESSES.

No way. I checked this ideaLease by Chrysler and they made a lot of sense for us.

But your wife doesn't drive enough.

It depends upon the kind of lease you choose. The Chrysler Leasing System people showed me the differences and worked out a lease that I can afford to pay each month.

And how long did you have to lease for?

Three years. But I could have had any length of lease I wanted

I don't get it.

You will if you talk to the Chrysler Leasing System people. They make it so simple.

Purych Paces Victory

Dean Purych played a strong two-way role Wednesday to lead Gordon Head to a 5-3 decision over Layritz in Greater Victoria Little League district championship tournament action at Royal Athletic Park.

Purych picked up the pitching victory by throwing a five-hitter and bashed in what proved to be the winning run with a two-run double in the fifth inning. It was his second two-bagger of the evening.

Jeff Plecas sparked a three-run first inning for Gordon Head with a two-run double and added a single.

Gary Burton led Layritz, which drops down into the losers' bracket of the week-long double-loss elimination affair, with a triple and a single.

Egypt in No Hurry To Resume Talks

LONDON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, apparently confident that Middle East peace efforts are back on track, today began reviewing sites for a new round of talks. But Egypt warned it might not attend.

Vance, who chaired two days of talks betwen Egyptian Foreign Minister Ibrahim Kamel and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan at a secluded English castle, said Wednesday the parties had agreed to resume the talks in about two weeks.

But in Cairo, state-controlled newspapers today quoted Foreign Minister Ibrahim Kamel as saying Egypt has not agreed to a resumption of peace talks, although its position would change if the Jewish state softened its negotiating position.

"Agreement has not been reached at the Leeds Castle conference to hold further meetings," Kamel was quoted as saying.

"Egypt's position is clear in this connection. If Israel comes up with new elements and declares readiness to withdraw (from occupied lands) and restore the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people, Egypt will be ready for further talks," Kamel said. "Otherwise, Egypt will not be ready."

American officials said earlier that a cancellation by either side would be a disastrous blow to Vance's plan to restore momentum to the Mideast peace process.

Vance met this morning with his chief Middle East negotiators, Ambassador Alfred Atherton and Assistant Secretary of State Harold Saunders.

Diplomatic sources said Vance was considering several possible locations for new talks, including Al-Arish, on the northern coast of the Sinai, and an American aircraft carrier in the Mediterranean.

Other possibilities are a neutral country, such as Morocco, or the demilitarized zone along the Suez canal.

When the talks at Leeds Castle, 45 miles south of London, ended Wednesday, Vance said, "There is a lot of hard work ahead." But he described the discussions as "the most candid and probing discussions I have heard between them (Egypt and Israel)."

Court Says New Vote In Bolivia

LA PAZ (AP) — The National Election Court has voided the results of Bolivia's first presidential election in 12 years at the request of the military government's candidate after the opposition said his victory was fraudulent.

The court called for another election within six months.

Gen. Juan Pereda, who had been declared winner of the July 9 election, asked the court Wednesday to annul the results and call another election. But adverse reaction from President Hugo Banzer indicated a split among the conservative officers.

Well-placed sources said Pereda made his decision after an all-night meeting with the military high command. But Banzer on Wednesday said that if the court annulled the election he would turn the presidency over to the military Aug. 6, the day that had been set for the inauguration of the new president.

The action of the election court also voided the congressional election since the distribution of seats was decided by the presidential results in each election district.

In annulling the vote, the election court seconded the opposition charges.

China Bids To End Tiff

Special to the Times

PEKING — China Wednesday made a bid to end the current impasse between itself and Vietnam in their bitter dispute over the fate of ethnic Chinese who want to leave Vietnam. Calling for a fresh start to negotiations, China has proposed new talks on the vice-foreign minister level in either Peking or Hanoi starting early next month.

If Vietnam agrees to these higher level talks, said a Chinese note to Vietnam's foreign ministry, then China is prepared to adjourn discussions on the question of shipping ethnic Chinese back to China. Those discussions have come to a virtual halt in the wake of namecalling from both sides, while the two Chinese ships that have been waiting to pick up ethnic Chinese at Vietnam ports now have been anchored just outside Vietnamese territorial waters for almost a month.

Clearly frustrated at the resilient obstinacy of the Vietnamese, some foreign observers here feel that China is making a major effort to scale down the atmosphere of tension surrounding the dispute.

Rents Soar in California

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Despite approval of Proposition 13, some apartment rents have jumped $100 a month in San Francisco, in Los Angeles some renters were socked with a $150 month increase and in Sacramento a 9 percent hike was put into effect at one apartment complex.

Howard Jarvis, patriarch of the California tax revolution, says 250 cases of "unconscionable rent increases" have been personally called to his attention.

With that in mind, Jarvis and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. jointly called meetings in Los Angeles today with representatives of the state's 185,000 apartment building owners to discuss ways to bring rents into line with the spirit of the Proposition 13, the property tax cutting initiative.

There are an estimated 3.5 million apartment units in California and both the governor and Jarvis say unwarranted rent hikes are occurring in spite of the Jarvis-Gann amendment, which hands owners of large buildings whopping property tax savings.

Rental income for just one of the two Cathedral Hill buildings, which overlook San Francisco Bay, will jump from $70,000 a month to $80,000.

"I have a studio apartment and they raised it $90 a month," from $275 to $365, said disabled World War II veteran Bob Mills, 66.

Building owner Alvin Dworman, whose headquarters are in New York, will profit from both ends if he carries through with his rent increases and reaps the Proposition 13 tax reductions at the same time.

In Sacramento, renters in the 239-unit Point West have been hit with 9 percent rent hikes to "cover increases in prices of goods and services ..."

Penthouse Scandal

NEW YORK — A Polish model has filed suit against Bob Guccione, publisher of Penthouse magazine, for $4 million, alleging he drugged and sexually assaulted her.

The suit, filed in Manhattan Supreme Court on Wednesday by Jolanta Duchi, also known as Jolanta Von Zmuda, also claimed that she was libelled by a story and pictures of her printed in the March, 1977, issue of the magazine.

Over her objections, the article was reprinted in the June, 1978, Penthouse issue and the pictures printed in the June, 1978, issue of Viva, another magazine of Guccione's, the suit alleged.

The defendant has 20 days to file an answer.

The suit charged that the statements attributed to her in the article were false and defamatory. She also said the story falsely stated that she would be a countess if it were not for Polish Communists.

As a result, she said, she fell into disfavor with the Polish government, which harassed and prevented her mother from obtaining a visa to visit the United States.

The court papers said that Jolanta now was unable to return to Poland.

On October 23, 1975, the suit said, Guccione "through trick and deceit drugged the plaintiff and assaulted the plaintiff and carnally knew her without her consent while she was unable to resist such defilement."

She said as a result of the articles and pictures, her chances for a successful modeling career were virtually eliminated.

Love-Child Case Admiral Dies of Cancer

ORANGE PARK, Fla. — Jackson Tate, a retired rear-admiral who waged a two-year diplomatic struggle to have his Russian-born daughter — actress Victoria Fyodorova — come to the United States, died Wednesday of cancer in hospital. He was 79.

Victoria's mother was Zoya Fyodorova, who when Tate met her at a Moscow reception in 1945 was Russia's leading motion-picture star.

Tate, then a navy captain attached to the U.S. embassy staff in the Russian capital, began an affair with the actress, but it was broken off when the war ended and Tate was ordered out of the country by Joseph Stalin.

Miss Fyodorova gave birth to Victoria in January 1946. Shortly afterwards, she was arrested on an espionage charge. Stalin had her exiled to Siberia, where she spent eight years without a trial for her affair with the U.S. officer.

I'M NO VAMPIRE CLAIMS WOMAN AGED 90

NEW YORK — An elderly Long Island woman has filed a $6.5-million suit against the publisher and author of a book which she says depicts her as bloodthirsty, 400-year-old, immoral, oversexed vampire.

Viola Courtney Billings, of Thatch Meadow Farms in St. James, N.Y., said a major character in The Vampire Tapes has the same name and address as she, and is described as "a killer, a pestilence, a person who feasts on blood, a person of immoral sexual appetites and habits."

The book written by Arabella Randolphe was published last year by Berkley Publishing Corp.

'The Dark Side of Camelot'

NEW YORK — Joan Kennedy lived on the dark side of Camelot. Beneath the flashing smile and Cape Cod tan, the wife of Sen. Edward Kennedy was an alcoholic.

"Unfortunately, I found out that alcohol could sedate me," she said in a lengthy interview with McCall's magazine published today.

Mrs. Kennedy detailed in the interview how she finally yielded to alcoholism, then recognized it and fought her way back with helping hands from her sister-in-law, Jackie Onassis, and Alcoholics Anonymous.

She told the magazine many factors drove her to drink, but leading the list was having to hold up in times of crisis.

"People ask whether the newspaper stories about Ted and girls hurt my feelings. Of course they hurt my feelings. They went to the core of my self esteem," she said.

"I began thinking, well, maybe I'm just not attractive enough, or attractive anymore, or whatever, and it was awfully easy to say ... if that's the way it is, I might as well have a drink."

She said in the interview that the Washington whirl along with a series of miscarriages and letdowns after tragic or moving events forced her to seek refuge in a bottle. But she didn't always succumb.

When her son Teddy's cancerous right leg was amputated, she didn't take a drink while the boy was in the hospital, she told McCall's. "But as soon as he was well ... I just collapsed.

LANGHAM REOPENS

Langham Court Theatre, home of the Victoria Theatre Guild, has been silent and dark in recent summers except for the odd audition or other meeting or the presence of a renovation crew.

But tonight the lights come on and the curtain will rise on a new young venture as the junior members of the Guild present their own production in the first of nine performances. The play is a comedy entitled Out of the Frying Pan and it concerns six young actors — three boys and three girls — struggling to find their footing in New York.

Economically stressed they are sharing an apartment which is a flight or so above one occupied by a producer who has a hit show on Broadway and is about to cast a road company. The group is avidly studying the play and learning the roles in the hope of impressing the producer, the only catch being that they keep failing in attempts to lure him upstairs to witness their efforts.

A concerned father, an eccentric landlady, a "Mickey Finn" and the police pile on further complications before the final resolution.

The play is being co-directed by David Gibbs Mourant and Andrew Jackson. It will be seen at Langham Court July 21, 22, 27, 28 and 29 and Aug. 3, 4, and 5. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. Tickets will be available at the door or may be reserved by calling the Theatre Guild box office, 384-2142, between 3:30 and 7:30 p.m. throughout the run.

Canada Likely to Live Despite Gov't: Writer

Prime Minister Trudeau has chased out all prominent English-speaking members of his cabinet, destroying the historic racial balance of the Liberal party, Vancouver Sun columnist Allan Fotheringham said in Victoria Wednesday.

Over the past 10 years, 27 English-speaking ministers have quit the Trudeau cabinet, he told a luncheon meeting of Victoria Chamber of Commerce at The Empress.

Fotheringham said the Liberal party will have difficulty following its pattern of alternating the leadership between the English and French community.

He said the most prominent English-speaking minister outside Quebec at the moment is Otto Lang, "which is a frightening thought."

Fotheringham said everywhere he goes in Canada he finds people concerned about the trend in the Liberal party and they are trying to find some reason to vote Conservative.

Fotheringham predicted Trudeau on Aug. 18 would call an election for Oct. 16.

Present indications are it will result in a minority Tory government, he said.

Fotheringham said the separation debate had been reduced to a personal shootout between Trudeau and Rene Levesque.

"Canada will survive them both," he predicted.

On the provincial scene, he said, the NDP would eventually return to power because there are only two parties left and they will alternate in government.

He took humourous potshots at several cabinet ministers and his biggest laughs came when he discussed Human Resources minister Bill Vander Zalm, whom he called the new Phil Gaglardi.

Fotheringham claimed there was a fire in Vander Zalm's home library, burning both his books; one of which Vander Zalm hadn't finished coloring.

He said he considered himself a writer not a speaker and therefore when he approached a podium he felt like Zsa-Zsa Gabor's sixth husband.

"I know what to do but I'm not sure I can make it interesting."

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 30-year-old man charged with robbery with threats of violence was released in his own recognizance in the sum of $1,000 and had a preliminary hearing set for Nov. 30.

Jason Joseph Pierre, 1407 Fort, was charged in connection with the theft of $391 from Field's Stores Ltd., 1420 Douglas, Monday.

Defence-lawyer Mel Hunt elected trial by judge without jury after bail was granted by Allan, who ordered Pierre to abstain from possession and consumption of liquor while the case is before the courts.

A 20-year-old who pleaded guilty to stealing money from a sleeping man's wallet was fined $200 and placed on six months' probation.

Kerry David Smith, 3345 Roberlack Road, pleaded guilty to theft under $200 and crown counsel N.K. Varma told the court Smith stole the wallet which contained four $50 bills and some $2 bills June 16.

Varma said Smith admitted the theft to RCMP who were investigating the incident and took the officers to the basement of his home where the money was hidden under some blankets.

Smith said the man was visiting his grandmother at the time.

Allan imposed a 14-day jail term on a 24-year-old man convicted of his second drug offence in less than two years.

Peter Frank Wickens, 871 Fleming in Esquimalt, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana. Crown counsel Derek Finall informed the court Wickens was checked June 24 at Thetis Lake Park and approximately 10 grams of marijuana was found in his knapsack. Finall also said Wickens was convicted of possession of a narcotc on Dec. 14, 1976, in Victoria and fined $100.

Gilles Rene Joseph Caron, 34, of Kamloops, was jailed 60 days after pleading guilty to his fourth drinking-driving conviction in less than five years.

Caron pleaded guilty to impaired driving and Lang withdrew a charge of driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 and entered a stay of proceedings on a charge of driving while suspended.

Lang said Caron was followed shortly after midnight Tuesday by an off-duty police officer who noted Caron's erratic driving. The officer, who had a small radio unit in his vehicle, contacted police and Caron was eventually stopped and taken to Saanich police headquarters, where readings of .22 and .23 were obtained.

Lang also stated that Caron was convicted for impaired driving in Kamloops on Feb. 20 and Oct. 22, 1974, and jailed for nine and 21 days, consecutively. He was also convicted of driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 in Jasper on Aug. 19, 1975, and sentenced to 45 days in jail.

Allan said he would recommend the term be served at the Kamloops Regional Correctional Centre and also put Caron on 12 months' probation and ordered him to attend any alcohol counselling as directed by his probation officer.

Fined for drinking-driving were: George William Price, 56, of 1445 Burnside, $500; Bruce Donald Britt, 37, of 2331 Bellamy, $500; Mark Milton Fisher, 20, of 3177 Glen Lake Road, $450; Alan Charles Boon, 20, of Dawson Creek, $450; Allan Barry Klassen, 41, of 2729 Peatt, $450; and John Frederick MacKay, 29, of 1008 Linda Lane, $450.

"Barfy and Sam wear flea collars. Couldn't WE have mosquito collars?"

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal was played in a team-of-four match, both South declarers arrived at the identical game contract. Both were defeated. One probably misplayed the hand; the other went down owing to circumstances beyond his control.

Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
3 NT	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

On West's opening lead of the spade ace, East signaled for a continuation by playing the ten. At trick two West continued with a low spade, dummy's king taking the trick.

Next came the ace, king and queen of trumps. When East discarded a club on the second trump lead, it was revealed that West possessed a sure trump winner. Hoping that West had been dealt three diamonds, declarer then attacked the diamond suit. But West ruffed the second diamond lead, cashed the club ace, and led a spade to East's queen, for the setting trick.

Actually, there was an alternative way of playing the hand, which would have resulted in a fulfilled contract. After winning trick two with dummy's king of spades, declarer would cash the trump ace. Then would come a diamond to his queen, after which South's remaining spade would be ruffed with the board's last trump.

Now a club would be led, and it wouldn't matter which of the defenders chose to win the trick. Played in this fashion, declarer's only losers would have been a spade, a club and a heart. As South played the hand — counting on a 3-2 division of the outstanding trumps — he lost his contract.

When the deal was replayed, South arrived at a four-heart contract via the identical sequence of bidding. The West defender got off to the diabolical opening lead of a low spade! South, hoping that West was leading away from the queen, played low from dummy. Upon winning with his queen, East returned a spade to West's ace. West then cashed the club's ace and, in time, he made a trump trick, to inflict a one-trick set on declarer.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, July 21
By Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Surprise package is dropped in your lap. Wish comes true. Influence spreads — you win popularity contest. Libra is in picture. Another Aries could also play key role. What appeared a major obstacle can be turned to your advantage.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Make inroads towards goal. Be selfish in sense that you refuse to be a punching bag or crying towel. Obtain your rights on professional and personal levels. Superior will make room for you — if you act in direct, independent manner. Display creative capabilities.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis on journey, long-range project, distant view, hunch that is on target. One who aided, taught you in past is "available." Don't permit pride to block progress. Collect what you need. Seek necessary consultation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Restrictions fall aside. Key is to be selective. Opportunities are numerous. What was standard or status quo is now ubiquitous. Gemini, Sagittarius and the number 3 figure prominently. Money, related to partner or mate, is a major consideration.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Go slow, be thorough, do more listening than asserting. Be aware of fine print. Get legal protection. If patient, you make gains. Otherwise, you could "pay through the nose." Spotlight on cooperative efforts. Get together with those whose views may be opposite your own. Keep an open mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Dig deep, analyze information, make necessary changes, promote your own self-esteem. Member of opposite sex, for whatever motive, may attempt to downgrade you. Have none of it! Dismantle project for purpose of rebuilding on a solid structure.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on emotions, love. You get gift. Home life is spotlighted. Adjustments occur where you live — domestic situation is harmonized. Taurus is in picture — and so is another Libran. Be ready for swift decisions, speculation, adventure that gets blood circulating!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Territorial rights are established. If realistic, you gain. If self-deception dominates, your possessions erode in value. Choices are your own. Pisces, Virgo and the number 7 figure prominently. You are beginning an upward climb.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can slip in a counter-punch that scores a knockout. Means you have power behind you, although some will think you are talking through your hat. Be calm, adaptable. Know that persons with pull and authority are backing you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on spending, counting change, protecting valuables. Aries, Libra and Aquarius persons figure prominently. Correspondence, calls indicate you are on right track. You'll get support from those who have broad view, who can perceive potential.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You make headway; efforts strike responsive chord. Cycle high — popularity increases. Affair of heart is part of scenario. Member of opposite sex is drawn to you and makes no secret of it. You succeed through personal touch.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Security, home, revising views, revamping appearance — these could all be on agenda. Aquarian can prove a valuable ally. Follow through on hunch. You're capable now of coming up with right answers at right time. Do it!

IF JULY 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are versatile, artistic, creative, fond of travel. You are self-indulgent, very conscious of appearance. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play key roles in your life. September will be your most important month of 1978, a year featuring commitment, responsibility, authority and increased earning potential.

Mills Too Busy for New Markets

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia newsprint producers are busy these days — so busy, in fact, that they are unable to take advantage of labor strife at mills in the western United States by expanding to fill that market.

All four B.C. producers — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., B.C. Forest Products Ltd., Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. and Ocean Falls Corp. — are producing at full capacity and do not expect the situation to change for some time.

The western United States is already a major market for B.C. producers (with the exception of Ocean Falls with exports mainly to India, South America, Indonesia and Australia), but they will not be able to service any new customers looking for newsprint because of strikes which have already affected four newsprint mills in Washington and Oregon.

Contracts covering workers at a dozen other western U.S. operations also expire this year.

"We are running at full capacity," says Tom Rust, president and chief operating officer of Crown Zellerbach. "We can't basically get any more out of our mill. We are going as hard as we can."

The company's Elk Falls mill on Vancouver Island turns out more than 200,000 tons annually, most of which goes to the U.S. West Coast.

At MacMillan Bloedel, a spokesman said, "we are going flat out."

"There is no slack. Inventories are non-existent."

MacMillan Bloedel, the largest newsprint manufacturer in the province, with newsprint operations at Port Alberni and Powell River, has an annual rated capacity of 849,000 metric tons in B.C.

Ian Barclay, chairman of B.C. Forest Products, says his company has been operating at full capacity since last June and can take no more orders. He believes the boom will continue until at least 1980 when additional capacity in the U.S. comes on stream.

75 Jobs, 1,000 Apply?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A city restaurant manager says he expects to receive about 1,000 applications to fill 75 part-time job openings as students continue to hustle for summer jobs. Barry Miazja, manager of Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers, said that by Tuesday morning about 200 people had lined up in front of his restaurant to apply for jobs.

Everest Challenge

GOLDEN (CP) — A team of 10 Canadian climbers has been granted approval by the government of Nepal to attempt Canada's first bid to conquer Mount Everest in the fall of 1982. Roger Marshall, a resident of this southeastern British Columbia community, has been named expedition leader while another local man, Gordon Smith, will act as deputy leader.

Pilot Uninjured

CHETWYND (CP) — Wayne Oryshek, 29, of Vancouver was unhurt Wednesday when the Bell Jet Ranger helicopter he was piloting crashed about 45 kilometres southwest of this central British Columbia community.

Pesticide Charges

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The owner of a pet store in this Central Interior city was charged Wednesday with five offences under the province's Pesticides Control Act. Bill Mahood, 48, was charged with three counts of selling pesticides without holding a valid certificate, one count of not having a valid licence to sell pesticides and one count of obstructing a pesticides control officer.

Tax Hike Study

VANCOUVER (CP) — The city's new economic development advisory board will study the impact a 16 per cent property tax increase has had on small businesses and industry this year, Mayor Jack Volrich said Tuesday.

Wiser Not to Have Met Heroin Group: Lt.-Gov.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lieutenant-Governor Henry Bell-Irving said Wednesday it probably would have been wiser if he had not met with a group still fighting the provincial government's plan for compulsory treatment of heroin addicts.

His comments came after a half-hour meeting with four members of a committee which says the provincial government's Heroin Treatment Act is unconstitutional. Bell-Irving gave royal assent to the act on June 29.

The group had wanted the lieutenant-governor to withhold his signature from the act and still wants him to refuse to sign an upcoming cabinet order-in-council that will proclaim the act and an official document stating that the act is proclaimed.

Bell-Irving said after the meeting that he has no constitutional right to withhold his signature.

"They are talking about a bill that has been duly passed by the legislature and I have no authority or intention of taking part, and I am not going to be involved in this political matter."

He explained that he had informed the group "through my secretary before that I could not discuss my opinions or support them in any way."

Asked why he agreed to meet the group, he said: "They were very persistant and I suppose I met them because I am a strong believer in freedom of speech and fair comment, perhaps too strong a believer.

"It would probably have been very wise if I didn't meet with them at all."

Lawyer Paul Meyers, spokesman for the group, said the committee appreciated the meeting with Bell-Irving but "it was really a waste of time."

"We feel he has the right and there are precedents in Alberta when the lieutenant-governor withheld his signature. But he told us he had no constitutional right to do so."

No Beds Planned

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spokesmen for Canadian airlines said Tuesday they do not plan to follow Japan Air Lines' decision to provide beds in first-class lounge areas of their Boeing 747 aircraft.

Jim McKeachie of CP Air said that although his company is watching JAL's changes with interest, it has already converted all its first-class lounges to economy seats and has no plans of putting in beds.

Air Canada spokesman Christine Saunders, said the airline has no intention of converting because the same aircraft used for long international flights are used for short domestic flights.

SOLAR PROJECT WORK BEGINS

Construction of an innovative solar greenhouse started Wednesday as part of a Saanich $359,000 Neighborhood Improvement Program.

The eight-foot by 20-foot greenhouse is being built adjacent to allotment gardens on Battleford Road.

While a convention greenhouse operates on free heat derived from the sun for about six months, the solar greenhouse will operate on free heat for an additional three months.

Daniel Simpson, spokesman for the Centre for Energy Conservation, said the greenhouse should be completed by mid-August.

The program, designed to rehabilitate a square-mile residential district bounded by Harriet, Hampton, Tillicum and the Trans-Canada Highway, includes $106,000 for planting trees along boulevards.

New sidewalks are also being laid on Hampton at a cost of $53,333 and $25,000 is being spent enclosing area ditches.

Other projects in the program include: erection of eight bus shelters for $13,000; development of an adventure program at Hampton school playground; creation of several mini-parks and the installation of traffic lights and crosswalks.

The Federal government funds 50 per cent of the program. The province and the municipality share equally the remaining costs.

New Vets Offices

OTTAWA (CP) — The veterans affairs department plans to open nine new offices across the country next year.

The new offices will be located in Corner Brook, Nfld., Campbellton, N.B., Sherbrooke and Gatineau, Que., Brampton and Peterborough, Ont., Brandon, Man., and Penticton and Prince George.

Regional headquarters for the Atlantic region will be established in Halifax with a sub-regional office in St. John's, Nfld.; in Montreal for the Quebec region; in Toronto for Ontario; in Winnipeg for the Prairie provinces and the Northwest Territories; and in Vancouver for British Columbia and the Yukon Territory.

Intervention Sought In Indian Blockade

CRANBROOK (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America has called on the federal and provincial governments to intervene in a dispute between CP Rail and the St. Mary's Indian band which the union says has created economic hardship in southeastern British Columbia.

H. L. Stevens, director of District 3 of the steelworkers, sent a telegram today "urgently requesting that all parties involved do everything in their power to resolve this dispute in a fair manner as quickly as possible before more layoffs occur in the Kimberley area."

Stevens said eight employees at the Kimberley operations of Cominco Ltd. were laid off today because of the band's blockade of a CP Rail line in the Kimberley-Cranbrook area and that 130 more employees face the risk of layoffs if the blockade continues.

The band has blocked the land to back demands for compensation for erosion of reserve land, which it says occurred because of a change in routing of CP Rail lines.

About 150 members of the band have halted nearly all east-west railway traffic over the Crowsnest Pass by erecting a plywood barrier on the 30-metre stretch of the line which passes through the reserve.

Stevens said if the blockade continues "it could force the closure of the Kimberley operations."

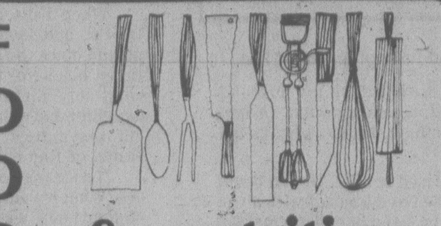
Moroccan Pigeon Pie Great Main Course



FOOD & nutrition

craig claiborne

One of the great main courses of this world is a buttery, fragile-crusted pigeon pie that comes from Morocco. It is a curious dish but infinitely gratifying. Curious because it contains, in addition to the shredded cooked meat of pigeons (Cornish game hens make an admirable substitute), ground almonds, confectioners' sugar and cinnamon. It is called basteeya or pastilla.

We first sampled it and became enamored of it about 30 years ago in Morocco and, in the ensuing period, on a brief visit to Casablanca. Our most recent tasting was at the much admired Moroccan restaurant, the Dar Maghreb Restaurant in Beverly Hills.

The dish would seem, on reading the recipe, to be complicated in its preparation. Actually it isn't and is well worth the effort.

BASTEEYA OR PASTILLA
(Moroccan pigeon or poultry pie)

The squab, or game hens:

- 5 squab or, more economically, 4 Cornish game hens
- Salt and freshly ground pepper
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 cups chopped onions
- 1 large clove garlic, unpeeled but crushed
- 1½ teaspoons ground turmeric
- ½ teaspoon stem saffron
- 5 small slices fresh ginger root or half a teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 teaspoon crushed coriander seeds
- 1 small dried hot red pepper
- 6 sprigs fresh parsley
- 12 peppercorns, crushed
- 2 cinnamon sticks, each about two inches long
- 4 cups water

The almond, cinnamon and sugar filling:

- 1 cup blanched almonds
- 2 tablespoons peanut, vegetable or corn oil
- 1½ tablespoons confectioners' sugar
- ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon

The egg mixture:

- 8 large eggs
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons butter

The final assembly:

- 18 to 24 squares (see note) phyllo pastry, available in shops that specialize in Greek pastries, as well as in the frozen-food sections of many shops that specialize in foreign foods.
- 1 cup clarified butter (see recipe)

The garnish:

- 3 tablespoons confectioners' suger.

1. Rub the squab or game hens inside and out with salt and pepper to taste. Heat the butter in a large casserole or Dutch oven and brown the squabs lightly on all sides, turning as necessary. Do not burn the butter. Scatter the onions around the birds and cook until wilted. Add the garlic, turmeric, saffron, ginger, coriander, hot red pepper, parsley, peppercorns, cinnamon sticks and water. Bring to the boil. Simmer, covered, 45 minutes to one hour. When ready, the birds should be quite tender.

2. Remove the birds to a platter and let cool. Let the cooking liquid reduce over high heat to about half its volume. Let this cool.

3. As the birds cook, add the almonds to a skillet containing the hot oil. Cook shaking the skillet and stirring, until the nuts are evenly browned. Drain on absorbent towelling and let cool. Chop or crush them coarsely with a rolling pin. Blend them with the sugar and cinnamon and set aside.

4. Remove the flesh from the birds. Discard the skin and bones. Shred the flesh and set aside.

5. Break the eggs into a mixing bowl and add the lemon juice and about three-quarters cup of the reduced liquid. Discard the remaining liquid. Beat the eggs with a whisk until thoroughly blended.

6. Heat about two tablespoons butter in a large skillet and add the mixture. Stir with a rubber spatula, scraping the bottom and sides as for making scrambled eggs. Continue cooking until eggs are fairly firm but not dry. Some of the liquid may separate. Ignore it. Remove from the heat and let cool.

7. Preheat oven to 475 degrees. Generously butter a 10-inch or slightly larger cake pan.

8. Lay out the 18 squares of phyllo pastry on a flat surface. At this point it is best to work as a team of two, with one person brushing clarified butter on the pastry, the other transferring the leaves as they are prepared. Work quickly.

9. Brush one sheet of the pastry liberally with melted butter. Transfer it quickly to the buttered pan. It should be placed symmetrically. Press the centre down gently inside the pan. butter another sheet and repeat. Continue until a total of 10 generously buttered pastry layers are piled on top of each other.

10. Add a light layer of the shredded squabs or game hens to the pastry-lined pan. Add the scrambled egg mixture, leaving the liquid, if any, in the skillet. Add the remaining shredded meat, smoothing it over to the edges of the pastry. Sprinkle all but one-quarter cup of the almond mixture over the mat. Dribble a little butter on top.

11. Butter four more sheets of pastry and cover the top of the "pie" as before. Bring up the edges and corners of the pastry, folding them inward to enclose the filling. Butter four more sheets of pastry and arrange these buttered side up. Quickly and with great care tuck and fold these under the entire pie, lifting the pie up with the fingers so that when ready it nestles neatly inside the cake pan.

12. Place the pie in the oven and bake 20 minutes, brushing the top occasionally with more butter. When nicely browned on top, cover loosely with foil and continue baking about 20 minutes longer.

13, Or, preferably, when the pie has baked the first 20 minutes and is nicely browned, place a rimmed but otherwise flat pan, like a pizza pan, over the pie. Hold it over a basin to catch any dripping. Invert quickly, turning the pie out. Now, invert a similar rimmed but otherwise flat pan over the pie and turn it over once more. This way the pie has its original crust side up. Return it to the oven. cover loosely with a sheet of aluminum foil and continue baking until the sides are nicely browned, about 20 minutes.

14. Immediately sprinkle the top of the pie with confectioners' sugar and the remaining one-quarter cup of the almond mixture.

15. Serve the pie hot. In Morocco, this pie is eaten with the fingers. The thumb, index and middle fingers are used. However, it may be served in wedges, Western style.

Yield: Six servings.

Note: To make this pie, use a minumum of 18 pastry sheets. A few additional sheets of pastry will not matter.

Reasonable caution must be taken when working with phyllo pastry to prevent its drying out. This is easily prevented, however, by keeping the sheets covered with a damp cloth as you work. Do not be afraid of tearing the pastry, however. it can be repaired with another sheet.

CLARIFIED BUTTER

Place three-quarters pound of butter (the quantity is arbitrary) in a one-quart measuring cup and let it stand on an asbestos pad over very low heat, or place it in a 200-degree oven, until melted. Do not disturb the liquid. Let cook then refrigerate. The clarified butter will harden between two soft, somewhat liquid or foamy layers. Scrape off the top layer. Invert the cup so the clarified butter comes out in one solid piece (you may have to encourage this with a fork or knife). Wipe off the clarified butter with paper towelling. This butter will keep for weeks in the refrigerator. Melt the butter before each use.

Lush Quickie From Tropics

Time was when the exotic section of the produce department was limited to one pineapple in a fruit basket . . . appearing as a lonely soul looking for a place to hide. But luckily for fresh fruit lovers, times have changed. Now, you not only find pineapple upon pineapple, boastfully displayed in quantity; you'll note that the fruitbasket has expanded to include mangoes, papaya, avocados and kiwifruit.

Kiwifruit is probably the newest comer to the exotic section. But, it's also the easiest to recognize, looking like brown eggs that have grown fuzzy.

Any dismay that may occur with this tropical fruit at first glance will easily be dispelled when you take the first bite. The kiwifruit has a tangy, tart-sweet flavor — a delicate taste claimed by some to be a combination of strawberry and banana.

For the novice just becoming aquainted with the kiwifruit and its various assorted pals in the exotic classification, the Tropical Toss Salad will prove an easy-to-prepare, taste-tingling treat.

TROPICAL TOSS

- 6 ripe kiwifruit
- 3 ripe bananas, peeled
- 1 ripe medium papaya, peeled
- 2 red apples, cored and cut into chunks
- 1 20-oz. can pineapple, drained
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice

Peel and slice kiwifruit into ¼-inch rounds. Slice banana and papaya into one-inch pieces. Add the apple and pineapple to these fruits and toss all gently with lemon juice. Serve in 1 quart bowl or in individual wine glasses with dollop of Tropical Topping.

Make 6-8 servings.

TROPICAL TOSS TANTALIZING TOPPING

- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1 pint strawberry low-fat yogurt

With electric mixer, whip cream on high speed until it forms stiff peaks. Fold in yogurt. Chill mixture for one hour.

Just right for a hot day — a refreshing tropical fruit toss.

Flounder Rolls Florentine

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach, thawed
- ½ cup (2 ounces) shredded Swiss cheese
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon tabasco pepper sauce, divided
- 6 flounder fillets, fresh or frozen
- 1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup

Melt butter in medium skillet. Add onion and cook until tender. Add spinach, cover and cook 5 minutes. Remove from heat, add cheese, salt and half of the tabasco sauce; mix well. Place ⅓ cup spinach filling on centre of each fish fillet and roll up, securing with wooden picks.

Place in a buttered 2-quart baking dish. Mix soup with remaining ⅛ teaspoon tabasco sauce and pour over fish. Bake in 375° F. oven for 25 to 35 minutes or until fish flakes when tested with a fork. Serve garnished with parsley and lemon slices.

Yield: six servings.

Calorie Counting Can Cut Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — With food prices soaring higher each month, health department spokesmen say this is the time for consumers to count their calories as well as their pennies when shopping for groceries.

Health Minister Monique Begin said recently there is an abundance of reasonably priced and nutritious food in Canada.

"However, there is a great need to educate consumers on how to get maximum nutritional value from their food dollar," she said.

Food prices account for most of the country's 9.2 per cent inflation rate. And the consumer price index, a measure of selected goods and services, shows that a food basket costing $10 in 1971 now costs $17.50.

But, says one department spokesman, shoppers should save their dollars by spending less on junk foods such as potato chips, cookies and carbonated beverages and instead choose items recommended by the Canada Food Guide.

The guide suggests recommended daily servings from the four main food groups: Milk and milk products; breads and cereals; fruits and vegetables and meats and alternates.

But more important than dollar savings, say government health officials and medical professionals, is the need to improve eating habits to reduce the risks associated with heart disease.

Heart disease, the most common cause of death in many parts of the world, accounts for hals the deaths in Canada. It is also the major cause of death in middle-aged men.

And a federal study group which spent four years examining the health and diets of Canadians found that more than half are over-weight.

Miss Begin, who has been actively promoting improved eating habits as an important form of preventative medicine, says Canadians need "to decrease their intake of foods high in calories, fat, sugar and salt and to increase their consumption of fruit, vegetables and whole grain cereals."

A new booklet, Shopping for Food and Nutrition, includes the Canada Food Guide and offers advice on selecting products for their nutritional and economic value.

The booklet may be obtained from either the federal agriculture or health department information services in Ottawa.

To help consumers stay within their budget, the booklet recommends eating before going grocery shopping, leaving other members of the family at home and preparing a grocery list before heading for the store.

"It's partly a matter of knowing what to beware of at the store, recognizing the pitfalls and discovering your shopping helpers," the booklet says.

One shopping helper is to plot a rough menu plan for the coming week and check the plan against specials advertised.

DEAR ABBY: After 25 years of marriage, my husband walked out on me and I am happy about it! Al and I raised six children. We spend most of our lives moving around the world, and I'm ready to settle down, but I don't think Al is.

When my father died (eight months ago) I began to suspect there was something going on between Al and my niece. (I'll call her Susie.) Susie was seen at the funeral home hanging all over Al.

Then she sat there with her stockinged feet in his lap, wiggling her toes! (Someone who didnt know me asked if SHE was his wife.)

My son told me he stopped at Susie's house because he saw dad's car in front. He said he waited a very long time for someone to open the door, then Susie showed up. half-dressed with her hair all messed up. A few minutes later his dad came out of the bedroom, looking like he had just gotten out of bed.

I noticed that whenever Susie called, my husband would do whatever she asked, no matter what. (When one of our kids wanted something, he was always too busy or too tired.)

He fixed Susie's car. He fixed her TV. He fixed her stereo. And it's a good thing he fixed himself with a vasectomy or he'd probably have fixed her that way too.

If Al wants a divorce, he can have it. With all the evidence I have, do you think I'm wrong for feeling as I do?

HAPPY IN HAMILTON

DEAR HAPPY: Not in my book.

DEAR ABBY: Why can't mothers take the time to call the home of a "strange" playmate who comes to visit?

My daughter was only three years old when some yongsters helped her over the fence that surrounds our yard.

When I discovered she was gone, I became hysterical, and soon had the whole neighborhood driving up and down the streets looking for her. Thank God we found her safe, two blocks away — in the home of a child only slightly older than she was. At three, our daughter knew her name and telephone number, but her playmate's mother never bothered to ask her name, or find out if her mother knew where she was.

If a strange playmate comes to my house, I always ask, What is your name? Where do you live? Does your mother know where you are? When do you have to be home?" Then I phone the mother to double-check.

Please put this into your own words, Abby, and print it. It could spare many a mother the terrifying nightmare of having to hunt for her child after dark.

Diet Pills Are Slimming, But Only to Your Wallet

By DR. JEAN MAYER and DR. JOHANNA DWYER

A friend came up with a novel idea for a new diet pill. As you may know, several plants, such as papayas and pineapples, contain "meat-eating" enzymes. For example, papain, the substance used in many meat tenderizers comes from papayas. With more imagination than scientific logic, our friend envisions a new breed of fruit whose enzymes will hone in on fat tissue to "devour" it, thereby creating a new, slender you without diet or exercise. Sound like magic? Absolutely! And it's quite impossible.

Still, many diet drugs and concoctions offer somewhat similar approaches to losing weight. If you are looking for dieting magic, we urge you to think twice before reaching for a pill. Most diet aids do not live up to their promises, and some are downright dangerous.

There are two general categories of diet pills: those that are sold over the counter in many drugstores and those that are legally available only through a doctor's prescription. Let's look first at the nonprescription dieting aids. Although there are hundreds of brands, they boil down to five types:

—Bulk-producing aids. These attempt to make you feel full without eating so much. You take a couple of pills or some powder before a meal in order to fill your stomach with low- or no-calorie bulk. Unfortunately, most people soon become accustomed to the feeling and eat as much as ever. To lose weight — with or without these pills — it is necessary to reduce food consumption!

—Diuretic pills. These products increase water excretion from the body. Although they do not affect fat loss, you will initially lose weight because the body is getting rid of water. Nonprescription diuretics are not very strong, and after a period of time, some lose their effectiveness. But even if they remain effective, as soon as you stop taking the pills, water — and weight — will return to former levels, ending the self-deception.

—Reducing candy. Since these products are sold in drugstores, many people think of them as drugs. Actually, they only differ from regular candy in that some are fortified with extra nutrients, and they are more expensive than plain candy. The idea is that eating some candy before a meal will decrease your appetite. As with the bulk-producing agents, there is no evidence that this occurs. Feeding — or developing — a sweet tooth is not going to bring long-term weight loss.

—Artificial sweeteners. In theory, if a dieter substitutes saccharin for sugar in coffee and tea while the calories in the rest of the food he eats remain the same, weight loss should follow. In practice, however, this doesn't seem to happen. Furthermore, recent studies linking cancer in laboratory animals to the consumption of saccharin bolster the argument for curbing our taste for sweets rather than switching to saccharin.

—Fad pills. These tend to come and go, and they often are a combination of two or more of the substances we have already discussed. Most have no special effect, aside from depleting your cash.

The most potent — and often the most hazardous — type of diet pills are the amphetamines (called uppers or pep pills on the street). They can be obtained legally through a doctor's prescription. Unfortunately, there is a sizable, illegal black market in amphetamines, particularly in some parts of the country. Also, some people will "borrow" a friend's prescription even though any sensible person knows that it is not safe to assume that a drug prescribed for one person is equally good for another.

Amphetamines depress the appetite, but they also have many serious side effects, including the fact that you can become addicted to them. If taken at all, it should be under a physician's careful supervision.

Don't risk ruining your health for the sake of a better figure. And take only the drugs and dosages recommended by your personal physician.

In the final analysis, for any diet to be effective, you have to follow a plan to reduce the amount of food you eat and thus reduce the total number of calories you consume. Pills — prescription or over-the-counter — may give you a psychological boost and prove an often-costly ritual to remind you that you are dieting. We believe that a good book on weight reduction, complete with healthy, low-calorie menus and recipes, is a far better investment.

Q. I have heard that zinc deficiency can cause skin problems and that oral zinc sulfate supplements are sometimes used to treat such problems. Is this true?

A. No, it's not true. Zinc sulfate has not been shown to be effictive in treating common skin problems. Several years ago, a group of investigators pinpointed two common characteristics among patients with psoriasis that led them to test the usefulness of oral zinc sulfate supplements. First, the psoriatic skin lesions resembled those seen in animals that were deficient in zinc and secondly, some of their patients did show low levels of zinc in their blood. Unfortunately, however, in their controlled study, zinc sulfate failed to bring about an improvement in skin lesions.

Zinc sulfate has apparently also been used to treat acne, but again, the results have been disappointing. In fact, there is only one condition in which zinc sulfate provides dramatic relief of both dermatologic and other symptoms — and that's in treating a rare, inherited disease known as acrodermatitis enteropathica. At present, it is believed that this rare disease, which occurs early in infancy and eventually proves fatal if left untreated, results from an infant's inability to absorb zinc.

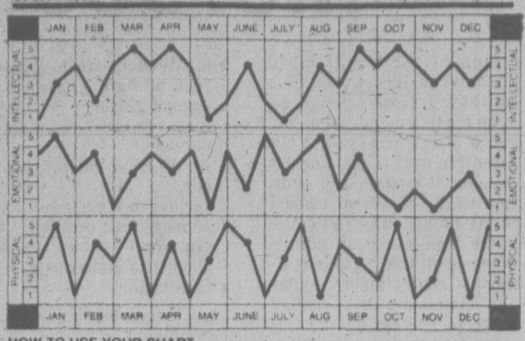
Bio-dex

July 21/78
By Ken J. Michaels
Your computerized biorhythm
©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978
Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle- Today is one of those days when you feel less attractive. Don't brood — nobody else will agree!

6-10 Neutral Cycle- You and a friend are on shaky ground. Perhaps you should take the initiative to firm things up.

11-15 Positive Cycle- Review your finances. A more realistic budget could brighten that bleak financial picture.

Keep an eye on Bio-dex for your friends too. Knowing when they're having critical days will help keep your friendship on an even keel. Inviting them out to dinner or a show, or just calling to chat could work wonders if their emotional cycle is low. If you both have a low Bio-dex, stay away from controversial subjects.

Controversial Tonsil Cuts

Is it always necessary to remove tonsils at the same time that the adenoids are taken out? My 2½-year-old daughter will soon have to have her adenoids out because she has had so many problems with her ears. There seems to be divided opinion about this. — Mrs. M.T.

Dear Mrs. T.:

There was a time, about 25 years ago, when almost every child routinely had tonsils and adenoids removed at about the age of 4 or 5.

With the newer knowledge of immunology, there has been a shift from the routine removal of tonsils and adenoids to a more conservative approach.

Today, this operation is performed for very specific reasons.

Repeated infections of the tonsils, attacks of strepthroat, swelling of the glands of the neck, nasality of speech and, particularly, bouts of ear infections associated with loss of hearing.

Before the antibiotics were discovered, children with ear infections would develop running ears. The pus would then affect the mastoid bone and set up infections behind the ear.

Today, instead of the drainage of pus through the eardrum, a thick fluid, with the consistency of honey, lodges behind the eardrum. This fluid interferes with the movement of the eardrum and causes temporary loss of hearing.

Pediatricians and ear, nose and throat surgeons agree that the removal of the adenoids alone is usually sufficient in children below the age of three. It is thought that the tonsils still serve as a protective mechanism in children so young.

When children are four, five or older there are advantages to the removal of the tonsils at the same time that the adenoids are taken out.

Can a cancer of the breast be caused by an injury? — Mrs. M.B.

Dear Mrs. B.:

Sometimes an injury can cause a rupture of a blood vessel. There may then be a collection of blood (hematoma), which feels like a lump beneath the skin. Almost invariably there is also the well-known black-and-blue mark on the surface of the skin. This lump gives the outward appearance of being a growth.

One of the major reasons why women attribute a breast cancer to an injury is that the injury often makes them inspect their breasts more carefuly and more frequently. An otherwise undiscovered lump may thus be brought to light.

Although I do not believe that injuries may in themselves be responsible for cancer of the breast, I do think that it should be brought to the attention of the doctor rather than be casually overlooked.

Free for the Asking

The 16-page pamphlet Eating Out And At Home is packed with helpful suggestions on how sufferers of diabetes can make restaurant meals a memorable occasion without disregarding their diet restrictions.

It says that if you know your exchange list by heart, you can select your foods from a menu at a glance. When you eat away from home, a wise rule is to avoid food mixtures. If you wish to travel by air, ask the airline to supply you with a meal for diabetics.

The pamphlet lists what type of appetizers, meat, fish, poultry, vegetables, bread and dessert diabetics should choose from an average restaurant menu. There are also pages of recipes for "free foods", foods which are so low in calories that they may be eaten in addition to the food allowed in your meal plan. Among the mouthwatering recipes are Jellied Gazpacho, Green Salad Mould, Orange Whip and Mocha Fluff.

Other diet recipes and suggestions include Devilled Eggs, Meat Loaf, Swiss Steak, Quick Marmalade, Diet Jam, a variety of sandwich fillings, Cheeseburger and Grilled Cheese and Bacon Sandwich. With every recipe you are told what exchanges an average serving represents. For example, the Grilled Cheese and Bacon Sandwich served on one slice of bread equals two Meat Exchanges and 1 Bread Exchange.

Grain + Legume = Complete Protein

Nutrition Buyline

QUESTION:

I heard a nutritionist on the radio say that the protein found in vegetables is incomplete. What does that mean?

ANSWER:

A complete protein is one of animal origin because it contains all the essential amino acids or building blocks in the right amounts for body functions. Vegetable protein is called incomplete because it is missing or contains a low level of one or more of the essential amino acids. By itself, our bodies cannot use it to build cells.

You can combine a vegetable protein low in one of the amino acids with one that is high in that particular amino acid and have a complete protein.

Populations who have relied on vegetables as their main source of protein for centuries have learned this method of combination. A very general rule is to combine whole grain cereals: wheat, rice, corn, barley, oats, etc. with legumes: dried peas, beans, lentils.

Two international examples of this are the fact that the Mexicans include corn and beans as part of their staple diet while the Chinese rely heavily on rice and soya beans.

In our country, a popular combination is peanut butter and whole wheat bread. You can also serve an animal source of protein: milk, cheese, meat, fish, fowl, with the vegetable protein to enhance its value.

To obtain the same amount of protein as found in meat, you must eat a larger quantity of vegetables. For example, a one cup serving of a casserole consisting primarily of lentils and brown rice could provide approximately 7 grams of protein; the same amount of protein that is found in 1 ounce of meat, 1 egg or ¾ cup of milk.

As previously mentioned, you can combine animal with vegetable protein to enhance its value and in turn also reduce the serving size. Using a combination meat, dairy and vegetable dish in your menu will also help to stretch your food dollar.

The pamphlet Nutrition Tips and Ideas, available from your local health unit, will give you more information on vegetable protein. I would also recommend a book that has been on the market for awhile but which covers the topic very thoroughly, Diet for a Small Planet by Frances Moore Lappe.

The following recipe combines vegetable protein and protein from dairy products to produce an inexpensive, nutritious main dish which would provide approximately 10 grams of protein per serving.

Vegetable-Bean Casserole

1 medium onion, chopped
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped celery
1 cup finely chopped carrots
1 cup dry soybeans cooked
½ cup grated cheese
1 10-oz. can condensed tomato soup
¼ cup stock or water
1 tsp salt
¾ cup whole wheat bread crumbs

Saute onion, green pepper, celery and carrots in oil until tender. Combine vegetables with remaining ingredients, except crumbs, in a greased baking dish. Top with crumbs and bake 30 minutes at 350 F. Yield 6 servings.

Women Chefs Share Secrets

By WILLIAM RICE
Washington Post

All over the world women cook, but men are chefs.

Is this situation explained by dogma? By Darwin? Or is it an aberration that can be changed by talented, determined women who choose cooking as a profession?

More women are doing so. Once only a handful of them could be found at the culinary Institute of America, the U.S.s foremost training program for chefs. Now enrollment is more than 20 percent female, and their proportion is rising.

There is no well marked path for women to follow. Sex discrimination still is rampant in the field, and even when a woman is hired, there is no guarantee she will be welcomed by her male colleagues.

As cases in point, consider the careers of two women.

Leslie Revsin and Elizabeth Wheeler are about a decade apart in age. They share a strong desire for artistic achievement though cooking. Both have broken through the sex barrier and become chefs yet they recount multiple fractures of heart and mind trying to work beyond the mundane, mechanical aspects of daily restaurant routine.

Revsin gained fame as the first woman chef at New York City's Waldorf-Astoria and recenty opened her own place, Restaurant Leslie, in Greenwich Village.

"At first you learn how to function in a kitchen," she said. "Later you hope to meet one or two persons way beyond your level. So few cooks have both intuition and technique."

To most chefs cooking is just a job, she says, but should be a form of personal expression that is personal and deep.

"The kitchen fries your brain after a while," says Elizabeth Wheeler.She, too, has been a chef, at a restaurant in Shepherdstown, W. Va., called the Yellow Brick Bank,two restaurants in New England, a natural-foods restaurant in Ohio and — most recently — the galley of a yacht in the Caribbean.

"I learned by buying books, reading and experimenting," she said. "There was nobody to look up to, nobody to learn from. What I know, I taught myself."

ELIZABETH WHEELER'S TOMATO-DILL SOUP
(12 to 16 servings)

Whites of 2 large leeks, washed and thinly sliced
2 to 3 tablespoons butter
2 pounds ripe tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
1 pint homemade chicken stock
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1 teaspoon sugar
Stems from dill and parsley
1-2 pint heavy cream, scalded
Fresh dill (tarragon or basil) to taste

Cook leeks with butter over very low heat in a covered pan (avoid aluminum). When tender, add tomatoes, dill and parsley stems, sugar and salt. Cook uncovered until liquid is absorbed. Add chicken stock and simmer 15 minutes. Remove stems. Put the soup through a fine foodmill or puree in blender or food processor. Consistency should be smooth. Add cream and 1 to 2 tablespoons chopped fresh dill leaves. Grind in some pepper and salt to taste. Serve chilled or hot.

Chef's notes: The charm of this soup lies in the use of fresh, ripe tomatoes and herbs (tarragon or basil can be substituted). If soup is to be chilled, be sure stock is not too gelatinous.

ELIZABETH WHEELER'S CABBAGE STUFFED WITH PORK AND CHESTNUTS
(8 servings)

1 large cabbage, outer leaves removed
1 onion, finely chopped
2 tablesooons butter
1 pound pork sausage, flavored to taste with garlic, mixed spices, oregano, chopped fresh parsley
18 chestnuts, shelled and cooked in stock
3 to 4 ounces bread crumbs (from French bread) soaked in stock or water, squeezed dry
2 eggs
Salt and pepper to taste
18 chestnuts, shelled and cooked is stock

Blanch cabbage in boiling weter for 10 to 15 minutes. Drain until cool, then gently pull leaves open and separate them. Remove heart, chop and saute in butter with the onion until both are softened but not brown.

Mix chopped cabbage and onion, pork and seasonings, bread crumbs, eggs, salt and pepper together to make a stuffing. Fold in chestnuts gently. Place in the center cavity of the cabbage and fold the leaves back around the stuffing. Wrap in cheesecloth firmly. Gather loose ends of cloth into a bunch and tie. Place the cabbage in a heavy pot, such as enamel cast-iron. Cover with stock and simmer for 2 to 3 hours.

To serve, place on platter and cut in wedges. Serve the cooking juices in a sauce boat.

LESLIE REVSIN'S VELOUTE OF ESCARGOTS
(4 servings)

2-ounce chunk of smoked bacon, cut into small dice
4 shallots, peeled and liced
1 clove garlic peeled, lightly mashed
6 ounces escargots rinsed (set aside 8 to 12 for garnish)
1 small bay leaf
1 cup homemade chicken veloute
1-2 cup heavy cream (avoid ultra-pasteurized)
1-2 cup milk

Slowly render bacon in a heavy pot or deep pan. Add shallots. Cook until shallots are soft and lightly brown. Add garlic. Cook 2 to 3 minutes more. Add escargots and bay leaf and cook very slowly over low heat with other ingredients for 5 minutes.

Add chicken veloute and simmer all together for 25 minutes. Puree until escargots and other solid ingredient have become tiny pieces — not completely smooth. Return to heat and thin to a light cream-soup consistency with heavy cream and milk, using less or more cream and milk as needed to achieve thedesired consistency. Season with salt and white pepper. Lightly saute remaining escargots in butter. Pour soup into bowls, gentle place sauteed escargots atop soup and add a light sprinkling of chopped parsley.

LESLIE REVSIN'S ROQUEFORT BEIGNET WITH APPLE PUREE
(4 servings)

3 crisp, tart apples, peeled, cored, roughly chopped
Mace
8 warm crepes (standard recipe, with no sugar)
1-2 cup fritter batter (standard recipe)
Frying oil

Cook apples covered (with 2 to 3 tablespoons water if very crisp) until they begin to soften and throw off some of their liquid. Continue cooking uncovered until tender but not absolutely soft (they should be rough and have body). Season lighly with mace. Refrigerate until the puree is cold.

Divide Roquefort mixture equally between 8 crepes, placing it in the center of each. Fold the edges into the center to form square packets. Press down. Chill 1 hour or freeze 10 minutes to assure packet holding together. Dip each crepe packet into fritter batter and deep fry in hot oil until golden. Serve hot with cold puree and garnish each with a sprig of Italian parsley.

DEEP-FRIED ONION RINGS

1 large Spanish onion, peeled and cut into ¼" thick slices
1 cup flour
salt and pepper
2 eggs
2 tablespoons peanut oil
1 cup breadcrumbs

Peanut oil, in a deep-fryer, heated to 375°.

Season the flour with salt and pepper.

Dip each onion ring in the flour, then into beaten eggs, and finally into the breadcrumbs. Deep-fry the onion rings, a few at a time, in the peanut oil, until golden.

NO LAW PREVENTS COOKING OF CUKES

For years the most customary way to serve cucumbers was raw in salads, appetizers, relishes or sandwich fillings. But there's no culinary law stating that cucumbers can't be cooked. In fact such dishes as braised or baked cucumbers are only two of the many possibilities awaiting the adventurous cook. Read on and find out more.

The avalanche of cucumbers you now see on the market are Canadian-grown field cucumbers. They will be available until mid October, say food consultants at Agriculture Canada.

When choosing yours, look for those that are well shaped, firm, fresh and bright in color. Try to avoid any that are withered or shrivelled as they are often tough and bitter. Overmature cucumbers usually have an overgrown, puffy appearance.

Once you've got your cucumbers home, it's best to wash them to remove any dirt and then wipe dry and refrigerate them in a tightly closed plastic bag or container. They can keep in the refrigerator for up to ten days. Don't try to freeze them. They become soft and mushy when frozen.

The experimental food labs of the Food Advisory Division developed these two recipes for serving cucumbers hot. Try Panned or Braised Cucumbers or Baked Stuffed Cucumbers tonight.

PANNED OR BRAISED CUCUMBERS

2 large cucumbers
3 tablespoons sliced green onion
¼ cup butter
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Cut cucumbers in ¼-inch slices. Saute green onion in butter. Add cucumbers and seasonings. Cover, heat quickly to form steam, then reduce heat and cook gently until cucumbers are tender-crisp (about 3 minutes). Stir frequently to prevent sticking. Serve immediately. six servings.

BAKED STUFFED CUCUMBERS

3 large cucumbers
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped radishes
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup chopped tomatoes
½ teaspoon basil
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon celery salt
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 cup chicken bouillon

Peel cucumbers and cut in half lengthwise. Scoop out seeds. Saute onion and radishes in butter until onion is transparent. Combine sauteed vegetables, tomatoes, seasonings, cheese and bread crumbs. SHAME! ! !

That the Victoria Riding Academy has been given the boot!

They have been denied an anticipated grant (to help them move) by the B.C. Government, and have received insufficient influence and encouragement from Oak Bay and Saanich. Many youths, some who now weep at this loss, are denied this fine recreational activity. Many adults join them in their sadness.

It is to this community's shame that the Carleys (who have, for fifty-two years devoted themselves unselfishly to the training and enjoyment of many) and their fine horses, are to be evicted. The Carleys' hopes of being able to leave this heritage behind them for future generations have been shot down.

There is more at stake here than the almighty dollar.

It is a shame that all political parties failed to see and/or speak up about the need to continue and expand such a recreation facility, which, beside anything else, helps young people and keeps them off the street.

Despite a grant refusal, let's put it together . . . .

Please clip this coupon and mail to "Save the Academy" Box 534 Victoria Press Ltd.

RCMP Offered Classes In Barn Burning

OTTAWA (CP) — The so-called dirty tricks unit of the RCMP security service in Montreal offered in 1972 to instruct officers in other divisions on how to burn barns a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing has been told.

The offer was set out in a top-secret report mailed to RCMP headquarters in Ottawa July 7, 1972, two months after the G-4 unit burned a barn — which had been converted into a restaurant — to prevent a meeting of Quebec radicals and U.S. Black Panthers at Ste. Anne de la Rochelle, Que.

A chapter in the 42-page report by Marie-Claire Dube-Vani titled projects for disruption said:

"To plan and to execute disruption against individuals and their organizations of interest to G Section.

"The tactics mentioned on this topic have not been written up in this analysis.

"However, it is always possible to participate in a seminar with representatives from other sections or divisions involved in such manoeuvres, especially with those who are knowledgeable in this field."

Mme. Dube-Vani, a researcher-analyst with the G-4 unit in 1972, was daughter of the RCMP commander of the Quebec division at the time. She later left the force to marry a Mountie.

Commission counsel Ross Goodwin asked whether she was referring to the barn-burning in the chapter on disruptive tactics.

"Yes," she replied.

Goodwin asked whether there were any other examples.

"I don't think so," she replied.

Goodwin tried to go into detail about the barn-burning but RCMP lawyer Richard Mongeau said it wasn't pertinent to the issue before the commission — the development of human sources.

Mme. Dube-Vani at first speculated that the disruptive tactics chapter referred to a raid without warrant on a Montreal news agency.

However, it occurred in October, 1972, after the report was written.

Mme. Dube-Vani was assigned to write the report by Cobb after Ottawa asked for an analysis of the G-4 unit's approach in trying to recruit informers.

"Our thought is that your experience and methods should be shared with other branches and divisions so that they may benefit the whole security service," Cobb was told in a letter from Ottawa.

Seven of the 27 cases outlined in her report to Ottawa are being studied by the commission. Four were referred to it earlier this year because they involved questionable, and perhaps illegal, police practices.

NO AWARD FOR KIDNAP VICTIM

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's crimes compensation board has decided a 68-year-old Medicine Hat woman who was kidnapped last September and tied up in the trunk of her car is not eligible for compensation for pain and suffering.

The board did award Anna Schneider $191 to cover the expenses of attending the hearing and $250 for two medical reports and her legal costs.

Legislation governing awards says the applicant must have been injured in an attempt to preserve the peace in order to qualify for an award.

CAMPUS UNREST CITED IN LOAN INTEREST HIKE

OTTAWA (CP) — A student leader warned Wednesday that higher federal government interest rates for student loans will contribute to unrest on university campuses in the fall.

Pat Gibson gave the warning in an interview after the Canada Gazette published a government order saying the interest rate under the Canada Student Loan program will increase to 9.875 per cent from nine per cent.

She said the increase, combined with higher tuition rates and cuts in educational spending will mean increased unrest. Protests already were planned over tuition and spending cuts.

Student leaders from all the universities would meet in August to decide what action to take.

"Students are getting more and more afraid to put themselves into debt for a university degree which may not mean a job. They have no way of knowing how they'll be able to pay back the money," she said.

Under a government order signed by State Secretary John Roberts students will pay $98.75 in interest on a $1,000 student loan — $8.75 more than last year.

Buyer Probe Bared Concealed Debts

TORONTO (CP) — A prospective buyer's survey of Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd. showed the firm was owed $660,000 by unnamed debtors, but the sum did not appear in the company's books or records, a witness at a dredging conspiracy trial said Wednesday.

Alan Emsley, former vice-president of Mannix Co. Ltd. of Calgary, said the debt was explained to him by Robert Schneider, then general manager of the dredging firm.

Emsley said Schneider said the total included $275,000 in progress payments and $395,000 in holdbacks arising from a joint-venture job the firm performed earlier with McNamara Corp.

McNamara and Canadian Dredge and Dock are among nine companies and 11 individuals charged with conspiracy to defraud public agencies of more than $4.27 million by rigging bids on dredging contracts between 1969 and 1975.

Emsley testified that Schneider, a previous Crown witness and unindicted co-conspirator in the case, told him the company's owners were aware of the debt, but it would not affect the asking price of the firm, which was then for sale.

The Mannix group had been interested in buying Canadian Dredge and Dock, until its survey revealed the company would face a shortage of working capital, he told Mr. Justice William Parker and the jury.

Emsley said he reported the survey's findings to Schneider, who said he could find a couple of hundred thousand dollars owed to the firm by other contractors, but would have to go after them to get it.

Mannix eventually decided not to buy the dredging firm.

Algerian 'Kidnapping' Irks Women's Groups

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 40 Quebec women's groups have joined the feminist movement in Europe to demand the "liberation" of Dalila Maschino who they say is being held captive in Algeria by her older brother.

The newly-formed Committee for the Liberation of Dalila Maschino said Wednesday its action was part of an international wave of protest, strongest in France, which could eventually spread to Algeria.

Denis Maschino alleges his wife was kidnapped because he had angered her brother by marrying a European Christian. But Dalila's brother, Messaoud Zeghar, says from Algiers that Dalila left Montreal voluntarily.

"The kidnapping of Dalila is triply scandalous (because) it is a rape of human rights, which leave each human free to choose his or her place of residence, lifestyle and to marry the person of his or her choice," the committee spokeswoman Carole Vallier told a news conference.

The action by Zeghar, a wealthy businessman with links to Algerian president Houari Boumedienne, also violated women's right to "freely control themselves and their bodies," she said.

Zeghar is guilty of "a rare cruelty" in holding Dalila captive, Vallier said. But his behavior was quite plausible in Algeria where Islam, the state religion, "justifies open, brutal oppression of women."

The women denied they were trying to mount a racist attack against Algerian society as a whole, stressing that male dominance was just as serious a problem in Canada, although it was more subtle and hard to detect.

CPP FUND INVESTMENT $667.29M

OTTAWA (CP) — The finance department said Wednesday a total of $667.29 million of Canada Pension Plan funds was invested in provincial and federal securities between April and June this year.

Under the Canada Pension Plan, all funds received but not required to meet expenses and payment of benefits in the following three months are transferred to an investment fund for the purchase of securities of the provinces or of Canada.

Cut-Off Date for Fertilizer

Another date to circle on the gardening calendar is the first day of August, and beneath it this note:—

No more fertilizer to any permanent plant which has top growth above soil level over winter, and gradually decrease the amount of water applied to these plants.

Non-permanent plants needing continued feeding and watering are chrysanthemums, dahlias, flowering annuals, fall vegetables, and grassed areas which are really permanent.

"Permanent plants" applies to trees and shrubs both deciduous and evergreen, herbaceous perennials, fruit bushes, cane fruits, bramble fruits, rhubarb, limbers both ornamental and fruiting, asparagus, comfrey, and shrubby herbs.

For newcomers from areas where heavy fertilizing is recommended "when the garden is put to bed" an explanation is needed for this apparent contradiction.

Plants in local gardens never go to bed; they never become totally dormant as in areas of severe cold. Also we are able to succeed with many plants which are border-line as far as winter hardiness is concerned.

Growth continues well into November and often through December. It is arrested in winter cold spells, but is encouraged to start again in any two-week period of mild rainy weather.

The reason our native trees and wild plants can endure periods of severe cold is due to the growth ripening, or maturing naturally in the rainless months of July, August and September. Already they are browning and limp, but will quickly return to green in the rains of late October and November.

In the home garden this wilting and slight browning is not tolerated. It is considered a reflection on the gardener's abilities to grow plants and an indication of ignorance.

To prevent this stigma we water heavily for the next few months and even apply fertilizer to have the plants looking their best. This encourages rank new growth at a time when the growth made in early summer should be ripening, or maturing, and results in damage by early fall frosts and winter kill in January and February.

Fertilizer applied now would still be in the comparatively dry soil when fall rains start, and be available to the roots as the soil becomes thoroughly saturated, causing the spurt of growth we try hard to avoid.

Different kinds of plants require different amounts of water so it means adjusting the frequency of watering to the bare needs of the plants; a delicate balance to maintain.

Drying winds, with or without sun, remove moisture from foliage faster than it can be replaced when the humidity is low. Broadleaved evergreen and conifers lose moisture in this way during winter as well as summer. These have to be watched when temperature is high and humidity low as wilting soon becomes evident. A light misting of water over the foliage twice or three times a day is often better than heavy watering at the roots.

Plants near foundations or with roots under concrete or paving will need water in winter, but it should be decresed from the first of August to hasten ripening of this year's growths.

Many small herbaceous perennials grown here have some top growth remaining over winter, and these should be encouraged to ripen naturally in the next two months.

There are many things to consider. First the kinds of plants being grown, next the lay of the garden and its exposure to cold over winter, and the porosity of the soil which depends on the amount of sand and gravel, or clay, in its makeup. All of these help the gardener to determine the minimum amount of water that will keep the plants in good condition without losses or unnecessary growth.

Soviet Guards Beat U.S. Envoy

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet militiaman entered the U.S. embassy grounds in Moscow today and attacked an American diplomat, diplomatic sources said.

Embassy sources said Raymond Smith, a second secretary in the political section, was roughed up as he walked past the guard to the embassy apartment complex.

The Soviet policeman ran after Smith, jumped him from behind and ripped his coat while grappling with him, the sources said. Smith was not injured.

"The entire incident occurred on embassy property and therefore constituted an intrusion onto embassy grounds," the embassy said in a statement. "A strong protest is being lodged with the Soviet Foreign Ministry."

There was speculation that the guard had not recognized Smith and attack because he thought the bearded American was a Russian.

The guards often stop Soviet citizens who try to enter. In some cases, they have been beaten and hauled away.

The grounds of all foreign embassies in Moscow are off limits to the Soviet militiamen who are posted outside by the Soviet authorities.

Embassy sources said the Soviet guards have become "nastier" over the past several weeks, possibly in retaliation for attacks on Soviet business properties in the United States.

Smith, a specialist in internal Soviet politics who has had various contacts with Soviet dissidents, has been working at the embassy for two years and has one more year left on his tour.

The guards have also been on special alert because seven Soviet Pentecostalists a month ago managed to get inside the embassy and are holding a protest vigil there, demanding visas to leave the country.

Earlier, a Soviet militiaman at the Dutch embassy attacked a New Zealand diplomat as he tried to enter on business. The militiaman entered the building and dragged the diplomat into the street.

Meanwhile, the Communist party newspaper Pravda accused President Carter today of resorting to an "old rusty instrument of pressure and blackmail" in halting the sale of a U.S. computer and restricting export of U.S. oil technology to the Soviet Union.

Such "cold war levers are detrimental above all to the United States" and will not work, senior commentator Sergei Vishnevsky wrote.

ROME (AP) — Extremists shot a businessman in the legs near Turin Wednesday night and set off bombs that slightly injured a policeman and caused extensive damage in Rome and Milan.

S. E. Marling Rites Slated

Samuel Earle Marling was 83.

Born in Regina, he served with the 51st. Battery in the First World War and with the expeditionary force in Russia in 1919.

Marling served with the forest department until his retirement as forester-in-charge of mangement in 1960.

A memorial service will be held in St. Andrew's Church Saturday at 2 p.m.

'Someone May Get Killed'

A native Indian spokesman warned today violence may erupt over Indian fishing rights and somebody may get killed.

Chief Tom Sampson of the Tsarlip band, an official of the South Vancouver Island Tribal Association, delivered the warning as he charged the B.C Wildlife Federation is attempting to incite a confrontation between Indians and non-Indians.

Sampson said irresponsible statements by federation president Bill Otway will only aggravate tension over the rights of Indians to net fish in rivers for food.

"He (Otway) generalized. He's condeminng all Indians. He made silly irresponsible statements and he has put federal fisheries officiers in an awkward position."

"Somebody is going to get hurt — somebody is going to get killed. We are fighting to maintain a right that has always been ours.

"If the federation thinks it can stop the ancient right of Indians to take fish for their table, it's wrong," he said.

Sampson said the federation has taken a redneck position on the issue, leaving no room to settle the matter amicably.

He said the campaign to stop Indians from netting fish for their own use has resulted in fisheries officers arming themselves.

"Our stand on this issue won't change," he said.

Sampson said Indians have always been supported conservation.

"We favor netting fish in rivers because it is the most efficient and economical method of taking salmon."

LeBlanc Aide Due

LILLOOET (CP) — Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc agreed Wednesday to send parliamentary secretary Hugh Anderson (L—Comox-Alberni) here to meet with Indian representatives following a ban on Indian food fishing on the Fraser River Monday and Tuesday.

MP Jack Pearsall (L—Coast Chilcotin) said the meeting was to be held Saturday.

Pearsall said representatives of the Union of British Columbia Indian Chiefs and chiefs of several Indian bands in the Lillooet area will also attend.

About 20 salmon were seized and several native Indian fishermen were charged Monday with violating the fishing ban which fisheries officials said was put into effect because not enough salmon were reaching spawning grounds further upriver in the Fraser system.

Seven bands in this area, about 200 kilometres northeast of Vancouver, announced their intention to defy the ban. They said they had permits to fish for food in the Fraser four days a week and argued that the lack of salmon upstream was due to poor management by fisheries officials.

Pearsall said the purpose of the meeting Saturday was to prevent similar situations.

BEGIN WILL OPEN DRUG-USER FILES

TORONTO (CP) — Federal Health Minister Monique Begin has decided to make available to the public a data bank containing information on more than 200,000 Canadians known or suspected of using illegal drugs, according to the Globe and Mail.

The newspaper says that during the past 15 years the information has accumulated from reports by police, pharmacists, doctors, drug treatment centres and citizens.

A special cabinet order passed earlier this year excluded the data bank from public scrutiny under the privacy conditions of the Human Rights Act.

The newspaper says Miss Begin decided to take steps to reverse this order when she learned much of the same information contained in the data bank is available in RCMP files which are available on request.

The new order will be prepared in the next few weeks and probably will be approved by cabinet without much debate, the paper adds.

Mair Stressing Tariff Cuts

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said today Canada's textile industry does not need more protection against foreign imports as recommended by a federal study.

The minister said tariffs should be reduced rather than increased during the next few years to help B.C. consumers.

He said a report by the province's economic development ministry says most of the textile industy in Quebec is antiquated and obsolete.

Mair said the report recommends elimination of the obsolete parts and the modernization of the rest to compete in foreign markets.

The report opposes any further efforts to protect the industry because of the resultant higher costs to B.C. consumers, he said.

The federal government report released Monday urged Ottawa to maintain import quotas and tariffs and asked for financial incentives for Canada's $6 billion-a-year domestic industry and protect jobs for its 200,000 workers, mostly located in Quebec and Ontario.

The report says implementation of its proposals could boost sales by $1 billion a year and create 140,000 additional jobs in textile, garment and related industries.

Joan Wallace, general manager of the B.C. branch of the Retail Merchants Association, said Tuesday that import quotas should be removed becuase of costs to consumers.

The High Cost Of Eating . . .

Victoria's food prices have levelled but it's not much comfort for meat eaters who have seen prices double 1in two years

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Beef prices are up 70 per cent from this time last year and have risen 100 per cent from their low point of two years ago.

The price of fresh vegetables has stopped soaring now that local production is beginning to be harvested but a further round of increases is likely this winter.

The price of coffee has levelled but that's bad news. It should have been on the skids by now.

Beef, or the shortage of it, continues to be the main problem.

"I have never seen the supply this low," says B.C. meat broker K.H. Malmgren.

"Fortunately the demand is low over the summer so the pressure has eased off. But we could have an explosive situation in the fall, possibly as early as August.

"When the demand picks up prices could soar again."

It is part of the recurring five-year cycle in the industry, he says.

The price rises, everyone gets into the ranching business to make big profits and soon there is a surplus of cattle. So the price falls and everyone gets out. That creates a shortage. The price goes up.

"People are coming back into ranching now but it will take about two years before the pressure is eased. Prices will trend upwards for at least one year, possibly two."

Beef prices have stopped rising temporarily because housewives cook fewer hot meals in summer.

The wholesale price for carload beef is holding at $1.10 a pound but it has been as low as about 60 cents during the past two years.

The beef shortage is Canada-wide and the Americans, as usual, are adding to the problem.

"There is a beef shortage in the United States, too, and the Americans are buying as many Canadian cows as they can. They are buying aggressively at Cloverdale."

From a producer's point of view, Malmgren said, it is nice to see ranchers making money after several years of miserable conditions.

"Unfortunately, many of the ranchers who lost everything are long gone and it is new people who are reaping the profits. Still, this is all part of the normal cycle."

The market for fresh vegetables and fruit has been disrupted since the disastrous California rainstorms of last winter.

Prices rose sharply but now have levelled off. But they have not fallen signficantly despite a good supply of local produce on the market.

Vancouver Island growers say they are matching the price of imported vegetables and they will cut their price when the U.S. price declines.

Ironically, the vegetable and fruit shortage that forced prices up has ended. In fact there is a surplus of almost everything, especially new potatoes and cabbage.

Where the price goes after that depends upon the California crop. The long-term outlook is for rising prices over the winter.

The price of coffee has held firm when all economic factors indicate it should have declined sharply.

"It is just a matter of time before the price goes down," says B.C. buyer R.R. Gebert.

"Coffee orders are placed from 60 to 90 days in advance. The price is coming down between 10 cents and 20 cents a pound wholesale but it could be two months before the effects are felt in B.C.

"It will take at least one month, August at the earliest."

The surplus of coffee on the world market is reaching staggering proportions after two years of a shortage. Colombia became worried about its stockpiles and threw one million bags on the world market. Brazil retaliated by cutting its prices.

But all this action has to work its way through the marketing system before it can result in lower prices in B.C., Gebert said.

Canada also has to pay the price of a devalued dollar. Every $2 bag of coffee coming from the U.S. costs an extra 25 cents because of the exchange rate.

Still, coffee prices are on their way down and the consumer eventually will see evidence of this.

But when things are going right, there is always something to worry about.

"Lately, Brazil has been getting a frost kill every three years," Gebert said. "This is the third year. This is their winter and frosts often strike about now. The weather forecast is promising so far but it could happen at any time."

It was a severe frost kill three years ago that sent coffee prices soaring.

In summary, prices have levelled off for the summer but, except for coffee, almost everything will be higher by Christmas. And beef could be much higher.

By 1980 beef prices will start to come down but, of course, just about everything else will be more expensive. No one is predicting a decline in the cost of eating.

Full Moon Sparks Fears

SALONIKA (Reuter) — The promise of a full moon festival and the presence of Greek Premier Constantine Karamanlis here today failed to lure frightened Salonikans back to their homes following fears of a new earthquake disaster.

A strong tremor on June 20 — just one day before the last full moon — killed 50 people and injured many others, sending half a million of the city's 700,000 people to the safety of the countryside.

Despite the fact that Prime Minister Karamanlis was here to "hearten and encourage the city to resume normal life," widespread rumors of another earthquake tonight have almost emptied Salonika again.

Only a few shops were open today and streets were almost deserted.

Police stepped up patrols to prevent looting.

Seismologists reiterated today their assurances that there is no connection between a full moon and earthquakes.

The government hopes that a tremor-free night will bring back most of the population, many of whom have been staying in outlying villages since last month's tremor.

Many of the citizens staying behind were preparing to spend the night in parks, sleeping in tents provided by the government, or in single-storey buildings which are considered relatively safe.

FARMERS LASH GOV'T IN WAR ON HOPPERS

United Press International

Farmers fighting the worst grasshopper plague in parts of the U.S. Great Plains in 20 years complain the federal government has stripped them of their best weapons against the pests ravaging their crops.

The farmers and some agricultural officials in Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma want the Environmental Protection Agency to lift its ban on some pesticides that have wiped out the hoppers in the past.

The farmers say the EPA-approved pesticides pack neither the lethal punch nor the residual strength to stop the current plague of grasshoppers.

"You might kill a grasshoper with those sprays if you catch him, stick his head under and suffocate him," one Kansas crop sprayer snorted.

Environmentalists and the EPA say the two classes of pesticides the farmers want — heptachlor and chlordane, and aldrin and dieldrin — were banned because they were suspected of causing cancer in humans.

"Residues of these pesticides are widespread in food and there is evidence that practically every American has traces of them in his or her body," the EPA said Wednesday.

"Those chemicals don't go away but the grasshoppers will," said Maureen Hinkel, pesticide monitor of the Environmental Defence Fund, a Washington-based lobbying group.

The EPA says the farmers can make do with the approved pesticides carbaryl, malathion, toxaphene, dimethoate, methyl parathion, endrin, parathion, naled, chlorpyrifos and diazinon.

"Not all of these products are registered for every infested crop, but together we believe that they can provide an effective arsenal for controlling grasshoppers on alfalfa, wheat, corn and soybeans," said Assistant EPA Administrator Steven Jellinek.

"The approved chemicals work to some extent, but with 60 per square yard, even if you kill 50 per cent of them, you haven't helped yourself," said Roger Sandman of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture.

Anglican Bishop Expelled

WINDHOEK (Reuter) — The Anglican vicar-general of Namibia left today under an expulsion order. He said he will return after independence.

Rev. Ed Morrow, a critic of South Africa's rule in Namibia, was ordered to leave by Administrator-General Marthinus Steyn.

Morrow flew to Gaborone, capital of Botswana. From there, he said, he plans to go to Britain where he will meet Foreign Secretary David Owen.

Life Times 6 For Bomber

LONDON (AP) — A science student who opposed abortion was given six life sentences at London's Old Bailey criminal court Wednesday for a one-man firebomb campaign he waged "to purge the land of evil."

Thomas Lascelles, 18, "took the view that those who support abortion are wrong," declared the Recorder of London, James Miskin.

"He made lethal and beautifully designed bombs which, by the grace of God, did not kill anyone," Miskin said. "He has exhibited no remorse or any concern for his intended victims."

Lascelles, guarded in the dock by police officers, pleaded guilty to four counts of arson, mailing a parcel bomb to a woman advocate of abortion and planting a bomb filled with shards of glass outside a charity institution. He also confessed to six other arson offenses.

Detectives said they tracked Lascelles down through "a slender clue"—a letter published in a local weekly newspaper in April, 1977, in which he expressed his bitter anti-abortion views.

Police said Lascelles quickly confessed when he was questioned.

Welfare Relocation Runs Into Snag

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Wednesday his scheme to move Vancouver-area welfare recipients to Interior and northern B.C. has run into a snag.

Vander Zalm said in an interview that while there are many single persons receiving social assistance who could be relocated, and while many jobs exist outside of Vancouver, there is no accommodation for the workers.

He said his ministry is working on the problem but does not know how long it will take before it is resolved.

The minister said earlier that thousands of welfare recipients will be encouraged—and forced if necessary—to leave Vancouver in an effort to keep them from a life of drugs, liquor and prostitution.

He said Wednesday a prime example of the problem the government now faces exists in the Okanagan.

The area has a shortage of berry pickers, Vander Zalm said, but also has a shortage of suitable accommodation for workers.

Strikes Idle 6,200 U.S. Mill Workers

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Some 6,200 workers were off the job at 11 pulp and paper mills in Oregon and Washington this morning, with mills at Halsey and Coos Bay in Oregon the latest to be hit by strikes.

About 470 workers walked off the job at the American Can Co. mill in Halsey today while another 150 workers went on strike at the Menasha mill in Coos Bay.

ICBC WON'T PAY MEXICO THEFT

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — The Insurance Corp. of British Columbia does not have to indemnify a Langley couple for the loss of a truck stolen while they were in Mexico, County Court Judge Murray Hyde has ruled.

Anthony Bodner and his wife, Delouis, sued ICBC for the loss of their truck claiming 1976 ICBC pamphlets did not specify there was no coverage in Mexico.

The truck was stolen in Mazatlan Jan. 21, 1977. ICBC pamphlets issued this year specify Mexico is outside the coverage area.

In a written decision, Judge Hyde said that the pamphlet clearly stated that coverage was for Canada and the U.S. only.

Vander Z Critic Fired

VANDERHOOF (CP) — The co-ordinator of an independent community resources society in this Central Interior community was fired Wednesday after he filed charges in provincial court Tuesday that Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm contributed to juvenile delinquency.

Ed Yorke said he was informed of his dismissal Wednesday after directors of the society met Tuesday night to discuss the case.

Yorke filed charges against Vander Zalm and several others for failing to remove six children from an environment which he said promoted juvenile delinquency.

Yorke said his firing came under threat from the human resources ministry that the society's funding would be cut if he remained in his position.

The society provides special services, including family child care workers, to children and their families.

Both the director and vice-president of the society refused to comment on the firing.

LotoCan Profits Double

OTTAWA (CP) — Loto Canada's profits more than doubled in its second year of operation, says the corporation's 1977-1978 annual report released Wednesday.

In the fiscal year ending March 31, four draws netted more than $74 million compared to $28 million in two draws in Loto Canada's first 10 months of operation.

Gross sales were up to $225 million from $107 million the year before.

Under a revenue distribution agreement between the federal government and the provinces, 82.5 per cent of profits go to the 1976 Olympic Games deficit and to the Commonwealth Games next month in Edmonton.

The provinces get 12.5 per cent to use as they see fit. Five per cent is used by the federal government to support amateur sport and physical fitness programs.

However, the lottery dispute between Ottawa and the provinces heated up Tuesday as officials from the Western Ferries' Slap For 32?

A spokesman for the B.C. Ferry Corp. said Wednesday the Crown corporation is contemplating disciplinary action against workers who walked off the job Monday at Horseshoe Bay terminal in West Vancouver.

Ken Stratford, traffic manager, said in an interview that disciplinary action ranging from reprimands to suspensions could be levied against members of the B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union.

Thirty-two workers aboard the Queen of Coquitlam walked off the job leaving passengers stranded for four hours in some cases.

When the ferry finally left for Nanaimo after a meeting between the Labor Relations Board and the union, traffic at the terminal was backed up more than two kilometres.

Union spokesman Bob Peacock said the walkout was to protest against months of frustration with management over staffing and safety issues, and management's disregard for workers' complaints.

Stratford said one of the issues that led to the walkout centred on the ventilation system below decks.

He said the union complained the area was too hot. The corporation agreed, Stratford said, and installed a temporary system which will be replaced in the fall.

He disagreed with the union's contention that there is an understaffing and safety problem on the ferries.

Staffing meets federal regulations, Stratford said, and is well above requirements in the United States.

E. J. Bentley, another corporation spokesman, said the dispute was minor and involved the corporation's critical appraisal of an employee's work. He refused to elaborate.

The dispute, which was threatening to develop into a full-scale work stoppage, was cooled Tuesday by the Labor Relations Board when the two parties decided to resolve the dispute through grievance procedures without further walkouts.

ANOTHER CHESS DRAW

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (UPI) — Russian defector Viktor Korchnoi Thursday battled Soviet world champion Anatoly Karpov to another draw in the second game of the $550,000 world chess championship.

Karpov, the 27-year-old Russian whiz kid who won the world title by default when American champion Bobby Fischer refused to play him in 1975, offered the draw after 29 moves although he held a slight advantage at the time.

Quebec Inmates Take 6 Hostages

Times News Services

STE. ANNE des PLAINES, Que. — Two inmates armed with a pick-axe overpowered a guard Thursday and took six persons hostage, including the director of the prison school at the super-maximum security Archambeault Institute.

The hostage-takers, Serge Robert and Maurice Paquette, both 24, were demanding a car, two walkie-talkies and safe passage out of the prison, assistant prison director Laval Marchand said.

The convicts, both serving life sentences for murder and armed robbery, want to leave the prison with the two negotiators, prison chaplain Cure Claude Lebel and Louis Lemay, the prison's assistant director for security, Marchand said.

A Quebec Police Force spokesman said the prisoners overpowered their guard at the doorway of the prison school shortly after 6:30 a.m. PDT.

The spokesman said senior police officers, prison officials and the prison chaplain were negotiating by telephone for the release of the school's director, a guard and four instructors, one of them a woman.

There were no injuries reported, police said, adding that "there is no way they can escape from the grounds. The school is inside the walls surrounding the penitentiary, and there is a 12-foot fence around the walls."

A worker at the federal prison said the incident had not caused any disruption in the daily routine of the 400 other prisoners.

The incident followed last week's escape of four prisoners from Montreal's maximum-security Laval Institute in a blaze of gunfire. The inmates shot their way past the main gate and one guard and another prisoner trying to escape were killed in the crossfire.

Quebec provincial police cornered two of the fugitives at a campsite 25 miles southwest of Montreal, capturing one Wednesday and one today.

Police said no details of how the capture was made would be released until later in the day.

The other two escapees, described as the "most extremely dangerous," were still at large.

GAS BAGS aplenty have strolled on the lawns of The Empress, but Victoria seldom sees one this big. The 70-foot-high Air Canada balloon arrived today as part of the Captain Cook festivities. Although tethered on the lawns, it will take invited guests up aloft for a bird's eye view of tall ships and sundry other sights. The company says if weather conditions are favorable, the balloon may offer rides to the public before the weekend is over. (Bill Halkett photo).

Walkout On Wash. Ferries

SEATTLE (AP) — Engineers on two busy Washington state ferry routes remained off the job for a second day today in a dispute with the ferry system over staffing of a demonstration jetfoil.

The walkout continued despite a preliminary restraining order issued Wednesday night by King County Superior Court Judge Gerard Shelland, requiring the Mariner Engineers Beneficial Association to order its members back to work.

Ferry system spokesmen said an effort was made to contact the engineers after the restraining order was issued, but the engineers were either sick, on vacation or unreachable.

The routes affected were the Seattle to Winslow and Seattle to Bremerton runs — two of the busiest commuter runs in the ferry system. The job action meant more delays to and from work for hundreds of commuters who live in Bremerton and on Bainbridge Island.

Management personnel who have engineer licences to operate the jumbo ferry Walla Walla said they would make four round trips a day today between Seattle and Winslow to meet commuter demands. However, there was no service between Seattle and Bremerton.

VW Insult Earns Bop In the Eye

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Farris, 29, learned the hard way early Wednesday that people in Volkswagens don't appreciate insults aimed at their vehicles.

The lesson began shortly after Farris rode his bike past a red VW Beetle in the 1500-block Burrard, shouting to the occupants that their vehicle was "a pile of junk." He didn't explain to police why he made the remark.

A husky young man jumped out of the VW, walked over to Farris, punched him in the eye, then got back into the car and drove off.

The only good luck for Farris was that he was just a couple of blocks from St. Paul's Hospital, where it was determined that he had a broken cheekbone as well as a monumental shiner.

Police are looking for the Volkswagen driver.

Envoy Grabbed

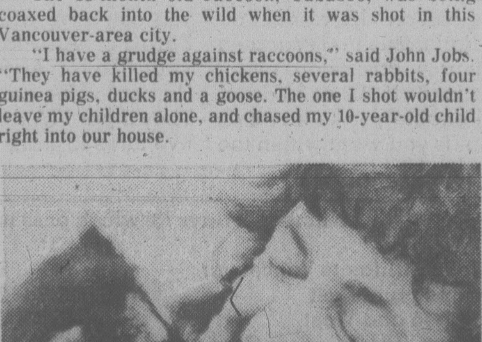
MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet guard chased and grabbed an American Embassy official Thursday as the diplomat was walking on U.S. property on his way into the embassy. See story on Page 37.

Killer of Raccoon Protests Neighbor 'Persecution'

PORT COQUITLAM (CP) — A city man said Wednesday he is being persecuted for shooting dead a tame raccoon featured in a book by Vancouver author Lyn Hancock.

The 18-month old raccoon, Tabasco, was being coaxed back into the wild when it was shot in this Vancouver-area city.

"I have a grudge against raccoons," said John Jobs. "They have killed my chickens, several rabbits, four guinea pigs, ducks and a goose. The one I shot wouldn't leave my children alone, and chased my 10-year-old child right into our house.



Tabasco and author Lyn Hancock

"How was I to know it was tame? It didn't have a tag around its neck saying: 'I'm tame, please don't shoot me.' In fact, it looked in even worse condition than most wild raccoons. It had an ugly looking patch on one side, and I thought it was diseased."

Jobs continued: "People living nearby are pointing me out as the bad guy. But this is the other side to the story. "I love animals just as much as anyone. Now I know this raccoon is tame, I'm really upset. I've apologized a hundred times, but the woman who was looking after it wants to nail me."

Hancock, who has written a book called 'There's a Raccoon in My Parka', asked a friend, Lore Putz, to take care of Tabasco and encourage the raccoon back into the wild.

"Tabasco came to my house towards the end of June," said Putz. "We live close to some woods, and we were trying to encourage her back into her natural habitat.

"She only spent a night with us, and then took off. We discovered she was in a nearby creek, and then she vanished again. The next thing we knew, she was dead.

"Lyn Hancock is just off on a trip to the Arctic, but she was devastated when she heard the news. Tabasco was the sweetest little thing."

Putz said she found out Tabasco had been shot from someone in the neighborhood, then confronted Jobs, who told her the pet raccoon was buried in his back yard.

Dismal Growth Picture Forecast

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The national economy would have to grow at nearly twice its current rate over a five-year period to fully employ the country's labor and capital resources, the Conference Board in Canada said Wednesday.

At the same time another private study, from the Vancouver-based Fraser Institute, says spending by governments now accounts for 41.2 per cent of total economic activity in Canada, a sharp rise from 30.8 per cent in 1961.

The Conference Board, a private economic research organization, states that prospects for the next 18 months are that economic growth will become even more sluggish because consumer demand is weak.

In the first three months of this year, the economy grew at a real annual rate of only 2.8 per cent, after discounting for the effects of price inflation. The national jobless rate in June was 8.6 per cent, highest since the 1930s, and industry is operating at only about 83 per cent of production capacity.

But even though these conditions suggest growth rates of about 5½ per cent annual are possible, demand is weak.

As a result, Charles Barrett, the director of general economic analysis for the Conference Board, says: "The current short-term outlook for the Canadian economy points to continuing sluggish growth between now and the end of 1979, and hence to the possible emergence of even more slack in the economy over the next 18 months."

If this is correct, the study says, then it will take an economic growth rate even higher than 5½ per cent over the coming five years to lower national unemployment to around 5½ per cent.

Business capital investment is exceptionally weak currently, the study notes. With savings high, companies may become more dependent on outside sources of financing than has historically been the case if economic recovery occurs.

This could lead to some financing difficulties and cause problems for liquidity, or availability of capital.

But if recovery occurs, the prospects are for a reduction in the government's spending deficit, possibly approaching a balanced position after five years of sustained growth. In the current financial year that started April 1, the federal government is expected to have a deficit of at least $11½ billion.

Michael Walker, research and editorial director of the Fraser Institute, says in real terms, after discounting for inflation, government spending has risen by 108 per cent since 1961.

The study meansures government spending as a percentage of gross national product. On this basis, governments were spending 41.2 per cent of GNP or $3,635 for every man, woman and child.

Following a recent meeting with top business leaders in Ottawa, Finance Minister Jean Chretien said agreement was reached for the government to take a smaller share of the national economy. This would leave a greater role for private industry, Chretien and the businessmen said.

Talks to Resume?

LONDON (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance says Egypt and Israel have agreed to resume Middle East peace talks in about two weeks, but Egypt warned it might not attend. See story on page 15.

BREAK-INS TIED TO JUVENILES

Sidney RCMP have traced a juvenile crime ring responsible for at least 14 break-ins in Sidney and North Saanich.

Three juveniles, aged 14 to 16, have been apprehended and police are seeking four more in connection with the series of thefts from homes, businesses, cars, and the Panorama Leisure Centre over the past month.

One of the boys is to appear in Family Court charged with theft and breaking and entering. He and another boy, yet to be formally charged, are in custody in the Juvenile Detention Home.

The third boy was released to the care of his parents and will appear in court later in the month.

A police spokesman said the stolen goods were hidden in the boys' homes and included stopwatches, tapedecks, radios, cigarettes, candies and film.

No Retreat Says Laurin Of Changes

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Cultural Affairs Minister Camille Laurin said today that new draft regulations to permit head offices to continue using English were "not a retreat" from the basic principles of the French Language Charter.

"It's an attempt to adjust the principle of the law . . . to the particular situation of head offices in Quebec," he told a news conference.

Both Laurin and Economic Development Minister Bernard Landry, repeating earlier statements, stressed no head office could interpret the regulations as forcing it to leave the province.

Most business leaders said they would have to study the new regulations in detail before reacting.

But Reg Groome, head of the mainly English-speaking Montreal Board of Trade, reacted angrily, saying it is "naive" and "ludicrous" for the government to expect it can control the language in which people do business.

Groome said the regulations amount to making companies ask for permission to use English, and would ultimately lead to the departure of more head offices from Montreal.

Landry said the regulations represented a delicate balance between "the cultural context of enterprise" and factors of efficiency and profitablity.

The government, he added, has concluded "that it's good for the Quebec economy to welcome numerous and important head offices" from outside the province.

The regulations allow head offices of companies with more than 50 per cent of their gross income from outside Quebec to conclude special, more flexible, agreements with the province's French Language Office on increasing the use of French as the language of work.

Under certain conditions other head offices and research groups doing less than 50 per cent of their business outside Quebec can also enter into similar special agreements.

Landry said he was planning to release a study showing head office activity in Montreal is actually increasing, but that he was "so sur

U.S. Mail Talks Bogged

Times News Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a mail strike perhaps hours away, the U.S. government's top mediator says both the U.S. Postal Service and postal unions are still far apart on major issues in negotiations on a new contract.

The major sticking point is a no-layoff clause the unions won in 1970 and say must be included in the new contract.

Postal Service negotiators say the 25-word phrase must be eliminated if they are to trim their work force and hold down future postal increases.

A spokesman for the Canadian post office in Toronto says Canada's post offices will continue to accept mail addressed to the United States despite the strike threat.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned narrowly lower as investors waited for the latest Federal Reserve Board money supply report and as expectations grew that the second-quarter corporate profit boom may not be sustained.

The Fed's money-supply report was due just after the market's close. Traders said they were encouraged by suspicions that the central bank may have detected a slowing in monetary growth and has decided against further credit-tightening policies for the present.

Airlines, which have been recording earnings gains on booming passenger traffic and which have been placing sizable orders for new planes, were among the most actively traded issues. Pan American led the most-actives, up ¼ to $7¾, while Eastern Airlines fell ⅛ to $13¾. UAL Inc. rose ⅝ to $35⅛.

Eastman Kodak was down 1¼ to $57⅝. The photo industry leader reported a better-than-anticipated 42-per-cent gain in second-quarter earnings Wednesday and was ahead 3½ in the previous session. Polaroid, which also reported improved earnings, lost ⅛ to $42. IBM was off ¾ to $269. A published report said the giant computer maker may be near the top of the industry in growth over the next year.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were generally higher in moderate afternoon trading today on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Volume at 2:30 p.m. EDT was 319,400 shares, up from the 232,691 shares traded up to the same time Wednesday. Re-Arm or Disband, McKinnon Tells Danson

Canada's armed forces should be disbanded if the federal government is not prepared to provide badly-needed new armaments, says Victoria Conservative MP Allan McKinnon.

McKinnon, his party's defence critic, said re-equipping the forces is of prime importance and would enhance Canada's role in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He said Defence Minister Barney Danson double-crossed the armed forces and double-crossed him by secretly reducing promised spending on new armaments.

Danson, he said, had maintained he was keeping a long-standing policy of increasing real capital spending on defence by 12 per cent annually.

"However, when I checked recently with the financial department, I was told the real increase this year is only 2.8 per cent," McKinnon said.

"I didn't mind him taking bows for decisions that had been made by former defence minister James Richardson as long as the badly-needed new armaments were being acquired — but I won't let him get away with this."

He said Danson's explanation was that his ministry would get a further $60 million in a future year by taking a cut this year.

"Our armed forces personnel are very trusting souls, I doubt many of them realize the budget has been cut back from the amount promised."
